WIFE TRIES SUICIDE AS HUSBAND DROWNS TRYING TO SAVE LAD

Harmon J. Martin, Chief of East Point Boy Scouts, Gives Life in Effort to Save Tommie Butler

BOY SCOUT CAMPERS WITNESS TRAGEDY

Butler, Who Was Only Fourteen Years Old, Had Wandered Too Far Out and Cries Attracted Martin

Harmon J. Martin, chief of the East Point boy scouts, and Tommie Butler, fourteen-year-old member of his troop, were drowned Tuesday morning in a pond at the scout camp on the Roswell road, while Mrs. Ruth Martin, who witnessed the tragedy, attempted to commit suicide with a revolver.

Martin lost his life in an effort to save the boy's. When he heard young Butler cry for help he plunged in after him. The boy twined his arms around Martin's neck and both sank for the third and last time.

Mrs. Martin, standing on the bank, screamed when she saw her husband's head sink, and running to a nearby tent, grabbed a pistol. Several of the young scouts grappled with her in time to spoil her aim so that the shot from the revolver flew wild. She was uninjured, but is reported in a dangerous condition from hysterics.

Martin was a stenographer in the office of the Atlanta Utility company. The Martins lived at West Washington and Sims street, East Point. Mr. Martin was twenty-five years old.

SON OF J. T. BUTLER.

Tommie Butler was the fourteen-year-old son of J. T. Butler, an employe of the Atlanta Auto Top and Trimming company, West End. The Butlers also lived on West Washington street in East Point. Tommie was a Journal route carrier.

Monday twenty of the East Point Boy Scouts left for their summer camp at Robinson's pond, other wise known as Howard's pond, on the Roswell road, a mile and a quarter beyond Buckhead. Martin, as Scout Master, headed the troop. He had been granted a vacation by his firm and was accompanied by Mrs. Martin.

Monday night was the first night in camp. According to meagre reports of the tragedy received by the county police, it occurred about noon. Young Butler is said to have been in bathing most of the morning, and while he could swim well, had ventured far out into the pond. Martin, standing in the bank, heard him scream. The scout master at once dived in an struck out for the drowning boy. Crazed with fear, Butler threw his arms around the older man's neck and so strangled him that they sank together.

Several of the boy scouts and Mrs. Martin were standing on the bank, almost paralyzed by the suddenness of the tragedy. Mrs. Martin started screaming and it was only the prompt action of a number of the boys which saved her from taking her own life. She was not touched by the pistol bullet she had intended for herself, but several hours later was reported prostrated.

PULMOTOR USED.

In the meantime Greenberg & Bond's ambulance had been called and made the run to the pond in record time. A pulmotor was taken, but was of no avail in saving young Butler, whose body was the first recovered.

At 2 o'clock men were engaged in dragging the pond for Martin's body.

The county police had learned of the drowning, and an officer was dispatched to notify the boy's family. When he reached East Point he found that Mrs. Butler had left for Atlanta, all unwitting of the tragedy. Mr. Butler was notified at the office of his company in West End, and at once hurried to the undertaker.

Mr. Martin was one of the most popular men in East Point, and his death has plunged his friends in sorrow. The Butler boy was also well known and loved, a leader in the Scout company and popular with his fellows.

Mr. Martin's mother and father were on a visit to their son from the elder Martin's home in South America—their first trip to the state in several years. They are staying in Dunwoody, Ga. It was stated by Mr. Martin's employers that he had been with them for about three years and was one of their most valued young men. He had been married for about two years and a half.

BRITISH LOSSES NOW REACH 330,995 TOTAL

Asquith Gives Figures Today—499 Naval Officers Are Killed

LONDON, July 27.—The casualties in the British army and navy reached a total of 330,995, according to a printed statement issued by Premier Asquith. The total naval casualties up to July 20 were 9,106, and the military casualties to July 18 were 321,889. The naval losses were divided as follows:

Officers killed, 499; wounded, 87; missing, 29; men killed, 7,430; wounded, 187; missing, 274.

Premier Asquith announced in the house of commons on June 9 that the total British casualties, excluding the naval division, had been 258,069 up to May 31 in killed, wounded and missing. This shows casualties in the army alone of 63,820 between May 31 and July 18.

On April 11, H. J. Tennant, undersecretary of war, announced the total of British losses as 139,247. If his figures were correct the British have lost 182,542 men in the last fourteen weeks, an average of 13,000 a week.

Great Britain is the only one of the belligerents which has announced her total casualties. Germany has issued at home full lists by name of all men killed wounded or missing, but the government has given out no official total.

NINE TRAWLERS ARE SUNK IN NORTH SEA BY TWO SUBMARINES

Gigantic Enveloping Movement of Austro-Germans Results in Furious Fighting Along Entire Eastern Front

KAISER PLANS TO ENVELOP AN ENTIRE RUSSIAN ARMY

Magnitude of Austro-German Movement in East Said by British to Be Unparalleled in History

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, July 27.—Apparently determined to demoralize the British fish supply as much as possible, two German submarines have appeared suddenly among the fishing fleet off the North coast of Scotland, and by shell fire have sunk nine trawlers.

German Advance Fiercely Resented by Russians

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The German advance on Warsaw continues today to be the most important development in the field of war. The Russian resistance has brought furious fighting along a wide front. Latest reports indicate that the German movement is progressing.

A Russian official report admits that the Germans are attacking the advance defenses of Novogeorgievsk, fifteen miles northwest of Warsaw, but recites a number of instances in which the Germans either have been repulsed or have been unsuccessful in their attacks. This is notable at Pultusk, thirty miles north of Warsaw. At Ivangorod also, 57 miles southeast attacks by German troops have been successfully repulsed.

The battle is still raging with terrific fury on almost the whole front between the Vieprz and the Bug rivers. Furthermore, Petrograd announces the destruction in the Black sea of forty sailing vessels laden with coal for Germany.

The casualties in the fighting on the Italo-Austrian frontier has lately been very heavy according to a dispatch received by the Tribune of Geneva. The Austrian losses would appear to be heavier, according to this newspaper.

There have been no developments on the western front. The French official report shows no changes of importance.

Kaiser Plans to Envelop an Entire Russian Army

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, July 27.—The magnitude of the German enveloping movement in the eastern field is absorbing the attention of the British officials and public. Latest reports show General Von Buelow's thirty thousand cavalry have turned southward from Riga and are within eighty miles of the railway connecting Petrograd with Warsaw.

In this way the northern German line is closing in on the main northern railway to the Russian capital while the southern army similarly is approaching the main southern artery running to Odessa.

The Times declares human history can show no parallel to this enveloping movement which, if successful, gives Russia to Russia and the western allies comparing with Russia's resistance to a Mongolian invasion.

The Times thinks the operations are a real danger to the whole system of railway defenses of which Warsaw is the center, and will be executed until the Germans are planning to envelop the entire Russian army in this region. The newspaper points out that the fall of Warsaw will have a grave significance for the west as it will mean that Russia's power to resume successful offensive will have been indefinitely postponed and that the principal bases for offensive will be in the hands of Germany.

Today's Petrograd official statement saying that the Germans have been thrown back at one point of the Narew river brings some relief to London as the military observers hold that the final results depend largely upon Russia prolonging her resistance until climatic conditions in that country interpose a barrier to the full realization of the German plan.

Reports from the other military fields, with the exception of the Italian frontier, where the Italians claim to have taken 1,600 prisoners, show comparative inactivity.

Russians Claim Repulse of Attacks by Germans

(By Associated Press.)

PETROGRAD, July 26.—(Via London, July 27.)—German attacks southeast of Pultusk have been driven back but they are battering at the advanced defense of Novogeorgievsk, the according to an official statement issued tonight. Assaults against the fortifications of Ivangorod also have been sucessfully repulsed, the Russians claim, while a terrific battle still is progressing on almost the entire front between the Vieprz and the Bug rivers.

The statement announces the destruction by torpedo boats in the Black sea of 40 coal laden sailing vessels.

The statement follows:

"North of the Niemen the enemy approached the Pomewiaz-Keydan front. On the road to Kovno from the southwest there has been some fighting.

"On the Narew front the enemy continued unsuccessfully to ttack our positions of the Pia river near the village of Snyatki. South of Rozan after a stubborn encounter with the Germans who had crosel the Narew we threw them back in the region near the mouth of the Orz as far as the village of that name.

"Southeast of Pultusk (north of Warsaw) the the enemy's attacks were repulsed. Small engagements were begun with the adanced defenses of Novogeorgievsk.

"On the last bank of the iVstula enemy attacks on Ivangerod's advanced works were repulsed with success. Between the Vistula and the Vieprz the artillery duel continues.

"Between the Vieprz and the Bug the

BRITISH CHANGE TONE OF NOTE TO AMERICA ON ORDER IN COUNCIL

Sir Edward Grey Cables Lansing Not to Publish Recent Note as New One Is Due Next Week

COTTON NOT TO BE MADE CONTRABAND, IS REPORT

Grey's Message Taken to Mean Some Change or Proposal Will Be Made to Alleviate Effect of Embargo

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Sir Edward Grey cabled Secretary Lansing today that the British government has in preparation another note to the United States on the order in council and asked that the note delivered yesterday be withheld from publication pending receipt of the new communication.

State department officials assume that the note is of a supplemental nature. The development will further delay dispatch of the American note to Great Britain, which Secretary Lansing has been preparing.

Secretary Lansing denied today reports that cotton was about to be placed on the contraband list by Great Britain. He said there had been no discussion with Great Britain in regard to any change in the status of cotton.

The message from London said the new note would be here in a week. The development was regarded officially as highly significant.

Sir Edward Grey's request that the note received yesterday be withheld was taken to mean that a new situation had arisen or that some new proposals were about to be made to alleviate the affects of the orders in council.

The note delivered yesterday held that the orders are within international law, although they may involve a new application of principles, and argues that it is proper to await a judicial interpretation.

JUSTIFICATION CLAIMED.

The note, in courteous language, holds that Great Britain's action is justified by decisions of the United States supreme court in cases arising during the Civil war. And differences with the United States over what is termed the new application of principles are held to be proper for submission to judicial settlement.

Secretary Lansing announced receipt of the note. It will be forwarded to President Wilson at Cornish, N. H. It was to be given out here for publication Wednesday.

The keynote of the British note is a declaration that the British government has steadfastly held to the broad principles of international law in all that has been done and will encounter, and if a neutral government feels aggrieved there is a remedy in the courts or, eventually in arbitration.

Generally, it is held that when a neutral country or port is made a base of operations against a belligerent, the other is justified in blockading such country or port.

Violation of Treaty With U. S. Is Laid to Kaiser

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Details of the sinking of the American steamship Leelanaw, by a German submarine, were today awaited by officials of the United States government, pending which they were reserved in their comments.

A full account of the destruction of the Leelanaw was expected until the American consul at Dundee, England, has completed his investigation. The inquiry was to begin there today with the arrival of the vessel's crew.

Only meager accounts of the sinking of the steamer have been received here. The episode, however, is the subject of considerable informal discussion here, coming so soon after the delivery of the American protest to Germany. The course to be pursued by the American government will not definitely be determined until all the facts in the case have been received. It is probable, however, the procedure will be the same as in the case of the American steamer William P. Frye, when the United States disputed Germany's right to destroy American ships even if carrying contraband.

Officials here are of the opinion that the Leelanaw should have been immune from attack and that Germany in reality had again violated the Prussian-American treaty of 1828.

Wilson's Contention Is Untenable, Declares Germans

BERLIN, July 27.—(By Wireless to Sayville).—Prof. Eduard Ludfren in an article on international law, commenting in an article in Der Tag on the American note to Germany says:

"The American note must produce indignation and great irritation. President Wilson's contention that American citizens may travel where their interests join the high seas call them is absolutely untenable.

"International law unconditionally acknowledges that neutrals do not possess absolute freedom of travel on the high seas in war time. The Lusitania case concerns not a merchant ship but a liner, the ship of which there were strong suspicions of her being turned into an auxiliary cruiser at any moment.

"The instinuation of the United States that Germany should give up her submarine warfare so that American citizens could travel on British ships is comprehensible only because it is in accordance with the entire attitude of the American government toward Germany.

"The delivery of arms and munitions not always violate neutrality, but if the shipment goes from one of the belligerents exclusively depends upon the delivery of arms and munitions by a neutral power then it constitutes a violation.

"President Wilson speaks of a new and unexpected method of naval warfare and the Mau note concedes the impossibility of submarines detaining hostile ships. A necessary consequence is the destruction of such vessels. Instead, President Wilson demands that Germany abandon the use of her most efficient weapon just to enable some Americans to travel on British ships instead of being satisfied with taking passage on American, Dutch, Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish ships."

POLICE BOARD SAYS BEAVERS PROVED HE WAS INSUBORDINATE

Say His Tirade at Meeting Monday Night Bore Out These Charges Against Him—Trial Thursday Night

BEAVERS SUSPENDED; MAYO PUT IN PLACE

Men and Religion Forward Movement Plans Recall of Mayor Woodward and Members of Police Board

Mayor James G. Woodward and a majority of the police board Tuesday declared that Chief of Police James L. Beavers, by losing his temper and cutting loose a tirade at the board Monday night, had been sufficiently insubordinate to warrant his dismissal as head of the department, regardless of the charges which already have been preferred against him.

They declared that in giving way to his feelings the chief had himself furnished evidence of insubordination which thoroughly bore out the formal accusations made against him in the resolution adopted by the board. They said this outbreak showed he was temperamentally unfit to head the department.

While such was the opinion among members of the board, the leaders of the Men and Religion Forward movement, in executive session in the office of John J. Eagan Tuesday morning discussed plans to restore the chief, whose crusades they have so constantly backed in the public's ire to his office.

COMMITTEE MEETS.

Six members of the executive committee of the movement met in the office of Chairman John J. Eagan and voted that it was the sense of the committee that it report to a call meeting of the Evangelical Ministers' association, urging a petition to recall Mayor James G. Woodward and the members of the police commission who suspended Chief Beavers.

Besides Chairman Eagan the members present were Marion M. Jackson, J. P. Jackson, H. A. Etheridge, Dr. Dunbar H. Ogden and J. C. Logan. The Evangelical Ministers' association, to which the executive committee will report, will probably meet on Thursday, and it is the plan of the executive committee that it be followed by a mass meeting.

"This fight has gone far enough now," said Marion Jackson, spokesman for the Men and Religion committee, "and regardless of the vote of Chief Beavers' trial, I think it is time the people make known their principles at the ballot box," he said.

Since the charter of the city of Atlanta was so amended as to give the voters the right of initiative, referendum and recall, that power has never been exercised.

Twenty-five per cent of the signatures of the registered voters of the city signed to a recall petition, are necessary before an election can be held. The majority decides the issue in case of election. Since the last year's registration less than 4,000 voters would have to sign a petition to secure such an election.

The action of Chief Beavers when he was suspended Monday night in bitterly upbraiding members of the board despite repeated commands from the chairman that he sit down, has drawn upon his head the criticism of the board members. At his public trial Thursday night in recorder's court room members say they will cite the chief's turbulent conduct as the finest and most positive that he is insubordinate.

FAVORED DISMISSING HIM.

"Beavers' actions at the meeting were enough to substantiate the charges we preferred against him and but for the law requiring that at least forty-eight hours be given the defendant to prepare his defense, I favored immediate proceeding with the matter and dismissing him," said Commissioner Bob Clarke.

Members of the board declared that Beavers' actions during the session were sufficient to warrant his dismissal without any further delay," said Captain James W. English. Other board members expressed the same views.

Tuesday morning Chief Beavers refused to comment on the board's action. He said he would probably wait for a statement to make later. The chief was at his home, and Captain W. M. Mayo, appointed acting chief during Beavers' suspension, was in full charge at headquarters.

The vote to suspend Beavers was 7 to 5. The meeting was held in executive session, but was open. When Chairman Fain called it to order, Commissioner Robert Jones took the floor, explained that the object of the special meeting was to prefer charges against Chief Beavers. He introduced a resolution in which the chief was called, "grossly inefficient and incompetent," a failure without excuse in suppressing a vast number of felonies and misdemeanors; unable to obtain the respect and confidence of his subordinates, insubordinate because he failed to obey instructions of the police board, constantly taking the advice of private citizens and not devoting his official time to the discharge of his official duties.

After some discussion the resolution was passed. Those voting for the resolution were. Commissioners R. C. Clark, A. R. King, J. W. English, R. T. Pace, Edwin Johnson, Mayor Woodward and Chairman W. P. Fain. Those voting against it were Commissioners W. A. Vernoy, C. J. Vaughn, S. A. Wardlaw, J. D. Sisson and Robert Hotland.

While the vote to suspend Chief Beavers was only 7 to 5, the vote to place him on trial was 9 to 3. Commissioners Sisson and Holland, who voted not to suspend, did vote to place him on trial on the charges of incompetency and inefficiency.

It was the sentiment of the board that Chief Beavers should be suspended just as any patrolman would be suspended under charges, and the board so voted.

Chairman Fain named Captain W. M. Mayo acting chief.

Up to this time Chief Beavers had had little to say, but as it appeared the

HUSBAND BURNED WIFE'S PERFECTLY PROPER GOWN

Indignant Wife Sues for Alimony and Gets $20 Per Month

A pretty telephone operator, scarcely seventeen, and a clean-cut, fair-haired telegraph operator not much older were the principals in a domestic drama that was staged in the Fulton superior court before Judge George L. Bell Tuesday morning. They were man and wife—Elbert E. Patton, an employe of the Western Union and Mrs. Eloise H. Patton, operating a private telephone switchboard. They were married in January this year, and they separated in June, when—

Mrs. Patton, the fair plaintiff, alleges Patton burned up one of her most fetching and becoming gowns, and otherwise abused her. The young woman appeared in court with her attorney, Alex W. Stephens, seeking temporary alimony and attorney's fees.

Patton admitted having destroyed the gown, but told the court that he considered it an indecent creation for the street, so the case turned largely on the character of the gown.

The young bride declared that it was perfectly plain and perfectly proper.

"I bought it with my own money, and my sister made it—a plain little linen dress with a belt," she pleaded. "And," she emphasized with earnestness, "it didn't look liké a night gown, judge."

Mrs. Elizabeth Couch, who lives at 170 Washington street with Mrs. Patton, and Mrs. Patton's mother told the court that she had helped to make the dress.

"And, your honor," she said, "it was a stylish creation, an empire gown of linen, with a high waist line, perfectly proper and very becoming."

When Attorney Young B. Smith, for the defendant, sought to question Mrs. Couch as to whether she was a widow, Judge Bell sustained an objection from Attorney Stephens.

"It makes no difference whether this witness is a grass or a sod widow," he said.

"This case presents the same old story—two kids marrying in haste and repenting at leisure," continued Judge Bell. "it appears that both are jealous, one or the other. One works at night in a telegraph office, the other in the daytime at a telephone switchboard. She is jealous of him for looking over the table at another woman, and he is jealous of her for wearing an empire gown. Each should make concessions, and they should settle their differences."

Judge Bell entered an order giving the young bride alimony of $20 per month, and requiring the defendant to pay attorney's fees of $20.

CHRISTOPHER, Ill., July 27.—Seven men are known to have lost their lives and at least eight others were badly burned as the result of an explosion of gas today in Moderwell 'mine, No. 1.

Four hundred and fifty men were in the mine where the explosion occurred but most of them escaped.

SELF-DEFENSE PLEA FOR KILLING 45 YEARS AGO

Rev. W. H. McCart Tells Jury He Believes He Was Justified in Shooting

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

COVINGTON, Ga., July 27.—Rev. W. H. McCart, gray-haired and evidently well past sixty, today told the jury trying him for life that he felt he had done right in killing Monroe Smith, a neighbor, on July 3, 1870.

"I have thought of this thing often during the forty-five years since I killed him. If I had my life to live over I would do the same thing. He insulted my mother and would have killed me if I hadn't shot first," he said, in effect, in his statement.

The dramatic trial was on an indictment returned shortly after Smith was killed. McCart left and lived for years in various parts of the world, engaging in many lines of work. For the past few years he has been a missionary in the Hawaiian Islands. Recently he returned and was arrested.

All of the witnesses this morning were aged and some so deaf that they were questioned with difficulty.

McCart, who is defended by Greene Johnson, of Monticello, and C. C. King, of Covington, put up the double plea of being justified in self-defense and the allegation that his mother was insulted.

His statement, which consumed about ten minutes, was made in a clear voice, and without hesitation. He asserted that his mother had told him of personal injuries at the hands of Smith, and that on the following morning he asked for an explanation.

With this Smith reached toward him, and then, according to McCart, he fired the fatal shot.

The case probably will go to the jury this afternoon.

ARKANSAS SLAYER HAS THE LAW UP A TREE

Can't Hang Him or Free Him, Must Spend Life in Death Cell

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 27.—If Sam Bell refuses to accept a pardon from the governor of Arkansas, he will not die, although he will serve a life sentence. But if he allows the governor to pardon him, he will be electrocuted.

That was the situation which developed here today, and its solution is in the hands of Sam and nobody else.

Sam killed four of his wife's relatives in Conway county. For one case, tried first, they sentenced him to a life term. Then they tried him on another and judgment of death was pronounced. Under the law, a prisoner sentenced to a life term can't be electrocuted unless he is first pardoned. As the attorney general has ruled a prisoner doesn't have to accept a pardon, unless he wants to, Sam's fate lies with himself.

They can't execute him unless he takes the pardon; they can't send him to the farm for life because he is supposed to occupy the death cell. So Sam appears to have the bulge on the situation.

NEW DAILY NEWSPAPER PROMISED FOR ATLANTA

Anti-Saloon League Plans to Make the Commonwealth a Daily

Atlanta is to have a new daily paper—the Commonwealth, published by the Anti-Salcon league, edited by G W. Eichelberger and devoted primarily to the prohibition propaganda.

The new publication, probably will make its initial bow to the public Friday afternoon, following which it will appear daily every afternoon, except Sundays.

Dr. Eichelberger, who is state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, announced the probable issuance of the Commonwealth as an afternoon daily Tuesday morning at the court house, where he had previously appeared before the grand jury seeking indictments against officers of the Greek club.

"The board of directors of the Georgia Anti-Saloon league will meet Wednesday in Atlanta, and I feel confident that it will decide to issue the Commonwealth as a daily paper," said Dr. Eichelberger.

"The Commonwealth, you understand, has been issued by the league as a semi-monthly publication. The time now has arrived when it should be published daily, except Sunday, and the plans have been practically completed."

Dr. Eichelberger stated that the departure would be a permanent one.

"It is not the plan," he said, "to issue the paper as a daily only during the sessions of the legislature. The program is to make it a permanent daily, devoted primarily to the prohibition cause and to the interest of better citizenship. As a semi-monthly, the Commonwealth has succeeded, and it is the belief that success will crown its efforts as a daily publication."

Dr. Eichelberger stated that the Atlanta newspapers had been entirely fair to the Anti-Saloon league and its work, and explained that the plan to issue a daily paper was not the result of any dissatisfaction with treatment accorded the league by the local press.

"The National Anti-Saloon league, in session at Atlantic City recently, decided to issue ten daily papers, and Atlanta has been agreed upon as the city wherein one of them is to be published. The national organization will make arrangements for telegraph service, but I have no present information as to this feature."

Dr. Eichelberger explained that in his opinion the Anti-Saloon league should take no hand in affairs local to Atlanta, more particularly the situation in the police department.

"The Anti-Saloon league is now and will continue for the present to devote its time and attention to the state legislature. It is my opinion that conditions in Atlanta cannot be reached and promptly handled until we have additional legislation."

MANY BIG CITIES ARE BEING SHOWN

Wonderful Earth Product Attracts Wide Attention. Tests Made Daily

Demonstrations and displays of Vitalitas, the wonderful earth product, are being conducted in many large cities. Perhaps no earth substance has ever attracted so much attention in so brief a time. The laboratories at Houston, Tex., the only place in the world where Vitalitas is extracted, are being rushed to meet the demand. Inquiries from everywhere pour in regarding it. Many come from people who have despaired of earthly help but who still cling to a faint hope that Nature may have produced something that will bring relief. They wonder if Vitalitas is that something.

In many cases it is performing real modern day miracles for the sick by banishing disease conditions where all other remedies have failed. It is giving back life to many on the brink of the grave and is demonstrating that Nature is the best doctor of all. No man or woman should despair if they have not tried this marvelous earth tonic.

Vitalitas assists Nature in bringing a new glow of vital force that sweeps away stomach troubles, ailments of liver, kidneys, bowels and blood. It has no harmful ingredients.

You can see sample Vitalitas at Jacobs' Pharmacy, 23 Whitehall street, or write there for information.—(Advt.)

MOON MEASURE WOULD BAR ALL LOCAL BILLS

Bill Offered to Give Georgia $3,000,000 Ship Building Corporation

Aimed at relieving the Georgia legislature of the burden of passing purely local bills, which, stated Senator E. T. Moon, of the Thirty-seventh, now consumed three-fourths of the time and work of the general assembly, a bill was introduced in the senate Tuesday by Mr. Moon to amend the constitution to abolish the passage of local bills.

This bill, which was also introduced into the house Tuesday, leaves it to the general assembly to enact a law, after the constitution is amended, to provide for the passage of these local measures in the various counties of the state.

"My bill did not set out exactly how this was to be done, it being purposely left to the legislature, but the general idea is that laws equivalent to what are now passed as local bills shall be enacted in the counties like charters are granted to corporations in these counties, the judge of the superior court presiding while the advocates and opponents of the proposed local measures appear before him and argue for or against its passage," said Senator Moon.

"At present, local measures are left entirely with the local representatives in the house or senate; under the new form, these things certainly could be thrashed out to better advantage in the counties affected than in the legislature. The added time for legislative work of state-wide importance which would be gained by this can hardly be estimated."

Another bill introduced by Senator Akin, of the Fourth, in the senate Tuesday will bring to Georgia, if it is passed, a ship building corporation of over $3,000,000. This bill provides that such a corporation, provided it builds a plant worth not less than $3,000,000, shall exist tax-free for ten years. Senator Akin says such a corporation will locate in Savannah or Brunswick if the bill is passed.

By vote of 27 to 0, the senate held Tuesday that Senator Stovall's temperance bill had been read for the second time Monday, despite the challenge of Senator Lawrence, who insisted that the bill had not properly passed through its second reading.

By unanimous consent Senator Dobbs' Western and Atlantic commission bill was read for the second time.

Following the introduction of several new bills, the debate on the house bill to appropriate $16,000 for the Third District Agricultural school at Americus began again where it left off Friday and Monday.

Amendments by Senators Walker and Ransom to reduce the appropriation to $12,000 and $10,000, respectively, were lost by vote of 11 to 25 and 8 to 30. By vote of 10 to 29, an amendment by Senator Moon to reduce the appropriation to $8,000 was also lost.

The original bill, carrying the $16,000 appropriation, then was voted upon, and passed by 34 to 5.

Considerable debate followed when Senator Dobbs' bill to supply justices of the peace and other court officials with Gober's form book came up for passage. Senators Lawrence, Moon and Adams led the fight for the bill. Senators Boykin, Stovall and Pickett, of the Eleventh, led the opposition. The bill empowers the governor to exchange old Georgia reports for copies of this form book.

By vote of 28 to 7, the bill was passed at 12:55 o'clock. The senate then adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

RECEIVER APPOINTED FOR CITY OF NASHVILLE, TENN.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 27.—Chancellor Allison this morning appointed Master in Chancery Robert Vaughn, receiver for the municipality of Nashville. A few minutes later Judge Matthews, in the first circuit court, in response to proceedings under Tennessee's new "ouster law" suspended from office Mayor Hillary E. Howse, and Commissioners Robert Elliott, Lyle Andrews and Charles Meyers, city treasurer.

J. M. Wilkerson has recently resigned as city commissioner. Andrews, commissioner of lights and finance, has been dismissed from office by vote of the commission, but the legality of their action being questioned, he was included in the ouster proceedings. He, together with City Comptroller Miles Burns, City Treasurer Charles Meyers and Assistant City Treasurer W. H. West, are under indictment in connection with the disappearance of certain books and records from the office of the comptroller. West's whereabouts is unknown. An audit and survey of the city's books is being conducted as a result of various charges of bad management and irregularities. Out of these charges have developed petitions for receivership and ouster.

In the hearing of evidence before a commissioner in chancery in the receivership case much light has been thrown on the conduct of the city's financial affairs, issuance of bonds, letting contracts and numerous charges of petty graft have been heard.

BOOKKEEPER AT BLAKELY ENDS LIFE WITH PISTOL

Tom Sutlive Leaves Note Saying He Had Planned Deed for Years

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

BLAKELY, Ga., July 27.—The body of Tom Sutlive, young bookkeeper of the Blakely Oil and Fertilizer company, was found about 10 o'clock last night lying in a pool of blood on the floor of his room at the Merchants hotel, a bullet hole through his head, just back of his eyes, and a revolver still grasped in his right hand. His body was stiff and it was probable that he had fired the shot which took his life shortly after noon. An unaddressed note was found on his dresser containing these words:

"This is no new thing. I have contemplated it for two or three years. I fail to see why any one should care to prolong life. I, of course, am sorry to cause relatives humiliation, but am tired of it all.

The note was written in a clear legible hand and showed no trace of nervousness.

Sutlive's body was carried to Fort Gaines, his former home, this morning for interment.

STATE RAILROAD BILLS RECOMMENDED TO HOUSE

W. & A. Committe Approves Persons' Measures Which Have Passed Senate

The Western and Atlantic railroad committee of the house Monday afternoon voted to recommend for passage the Person's bills, which have already passed the senate protecting the state road from a parallel line.

The first is a constitutional amendment providing no charter shall ever be issued to any railroad company to build a railroad parallel to the state road, or to any railroad company to build any line that will in any other way injure the value of the state road.

The second is a statute containing practically the same provisions.

The purpose of the second is to protect the state road until the constitutional amendment is ratified by the people, which cannot take place until the next general election in November, 1916.

The same committee, at the same meeting, referred to a sub-committee the various bills looking to the creation of a commission to dispose of the state road.

STATE FARM NOT GETTING ALL FUNDS COMING TO IT

Revenue From Near Beer Licenses Not Given Institution as Law Provides

Growing out of efforts to improve conditions at the state prison farm, it developed Monday upon investigation that for the past five years the state authorities have been going contrary to the law in not using the revenue derived from near-beer licenses for the maintenance of the farm.

Governor Harris, Attorney General Clifford Walker, Speaker Burwell, Senator John D. Walker and other members of the legislature conferred Monday afternoon and looked up the records and the law on this point.

These showed that the 1908 legislature passed a law providing that fees derived from near-beer licenses should be paid into the treasury and then applied to the farm appropriation. In 1909 an attempt was made to repeal this act, but the bill which was passed then provided only that the funds derived from the sale of these licenses "now" should be applied to the general fund and not specifically to the farm fund. This law, therefore, repealed the 1908 legislation only for the year 1909, and when all laws were codified in 1910, the 1909 law was included and the situation changed. In appropriating funds for the farm the legislature, it appears, has been acting for the past five years on the theory that the 1908 law had been repealed; namely, giving a lump sum to the farm regardless of what the near-beer appropriation was. For the past five years the farm appropriation has aggregated $500,000; while the near-beer revenue has been more than a million. It would appear, therefore, that the appropriation for the farm has been only about half of what it should have been. In this the authorities find some explanation for lack of needed improvements at the farm.

It was stated Tuesday that steps will probably be taken at this session of the legislature to repeal the 1908 law entirely, so that it will be legal for the legislature to go ahead and make a farm appropriation out of the general fund without considering the amount of the near-beer tax; and at the same time to make this appropriation sufficient to erect a main penitentiary building and provide such other improvements as are necessary.

CLOTHES ARE LOOT IN TWO BURGLARY CASES

Mrs. J. G. Camp, 221 Gordon street, reported to the police Monday afternoon that burglars had broken into her home and carried off a number of articles, consisting largely of wearing apparel.

A similar burglary was reported to have been perpetrated at the home of W. M. Leight, 23 Park street. The similarity of the two cases led the detectives, who investigated, to the belief that the same burglars did both jobs.

Detectives were called also to 184 Cascade avenue Monday to investigate a burglary there. Until an inventory is taken the family say they cannot tell what is missing.

GOLD WATCH PRESENTED LIBRARY OF DOVER, N. H.

The Calvinist club and public library of Dover, N. H., have been presented by Ethibert Waldron, wire chief of the Western Union, with a gold watch which was formerly the property of his uncle, Rev. Edmund Q. Sheafe Waldron, a prominent member of a pioneer family of the city.

Accompanying the watch is a chart giving its history. It was bought by Mr. Waldron's uncle at his graduation in 1833, and was inherited by his nephew at the uncle's death.

The council of Dover has taken appropriate action accepting the gift.

GEORGIA MULES WILL PLAY A PART IN WAR

English Government Places Contract for Supply With Ragsdale Company

The Georgia mule is going to become a factor in the European war, for the English government has just completed an arrangement with L. N. Ragsdale, of the Ragsdale Mule and Horse company, to furnish 100 mules a day, beginning next Monday and continuing for an indefinite period.

Two representatives of the English government will be sent here to inspect the animals.

A flat rate of $160 apiece will be paid, which means that $16,000 a day, or $480,000 a month, will be put in circulation in this territory. Mr. Ragsdale is paying from $125 to $150 a head for the mules. He says they must pass a rigid inspection and be in good condition.

The qualifications of an army mule are that they must be at least fifteen hands high, and must be of dark color, without blemishes that would impair their services at the front, where it is possible for them to live as long as a week.

As this is the dull season for farmers, many of them are willing to dispose of their stock until the next planting season, thus saving a heavy feed bill for the balance of the year. Most of the mules bought for the English government are coming from southern farms.

Mr. Ragsdale says that farmers wishing to dispose of their stock may bring them to him for inspection by the inspectors of the English army.

CREEN ASKS GOVERNOR FOR X-RAY EXAMINATION

Frank's Assailant Says Broken Rib Has Affected His Mind

J. W. Creen, the life-term convict who cut Leo M. Frank's throat at the state prison farm, made one request of Governor Nat E. Harris during his interview with the governor at the state prison farm last Saturday, it developed today:

"I have one request to make of you, Governor Harris," said Creen.

The govenor naturally expected Cfeen to ask for clemency. Imagine his surprise when Creen said:

"I had several ribs broken years ago, and one of them was not set right. It has pained me ever since. I believe it is the cause of my stroke of paralysis. The constant pain has even affected my mind. My request, governor, is that you have an X-ray examination made of me, to find out what's the trouble."

The governor drew a long breath when Creen finished. In place of a clemency plea from a man who has killed two men and attempted to kill a third, the governor had been called on to perform a very simple and easy service.

"I promised Creen to grant his request," the governor says, "and I am going to have the examination made."

PLAN AUTO DRIVE FOR OLD WOMEN OF HOME

St. Philip's Daughters of the King Ask Loan of Cars Wednesday

The residents of the Old Women's home will be given an automobile ride Wednesday afternoon by the Daughters of the King of St. Philip's cathedral. It is planned to drive the old women around the city and bring up at Grant park where refreshments will be served.

The automobiles to be used in this service will be donated for the afternoon, and it is stated that about one dozen cars will be required. Auto owners will please communicate with Mrs. Gibbs, Main 4992, or Mrs. R. E. Renault, Ivy 516.

GOV. HARRIS TO ADDRESS MASONS TUESDAY NIGHT

Governor Nat E. Harris will address Gate City lodge, Free and Accepted Masons, Tuesday night, at the Masonic temple, Peachtree and Cain streets. The governor is a prominent member of the Masonic order, being pastmaster of Macon lodge No. 5.

The lodge will convene at 3:30 o'clock, confer the first and second sections of the degree, reconvene at 8 o'clock, when the business session will be held, after which the third section will be conferred and Governor Harris will speak. A specially adapted musical program has been arranged, including vocal numbers by Pastmaster John H. Mullin, and organ selections by Charles Sheldon, organist of Trinity church.

THOMSON TO SPEAK TO GRANITE CLUB

William Thomson will address the Granite club next Friday evening, when the members of the organization are entertained by Thomas W. Connally. Mr. Thomson will talk of "what should be the state's attitude towards denominational colleges."

MICA SPECTACLES PROTECT THE SOLDIERS

PITTSBURGH, Penn., July 27.—Inquiries have been made by a representative of the French government among local manufacturers regarding the possibility of placing an order for sufficient mica to make four million lenses for glasses to be worn by soldiers fighting in the trenches in Europe. They assert that mica forms a protection to the eyes from gas and acid bombs as it will not shatter when struck and is not susceptible to heat.

Neither Atlanta Nor Georgia Will Endure Beckerism

"Many bore false witness against Him."
Mark 14-56

BECKERISM is the protection of criminals in the commission of crime by those whose duty it is to stop crime.

Becker was a captain of police in New York.

Today, he is trying, in jail, to escape execution as a murderer.

The white-slaver, the liquor dealer, the gambler looked to Becker for protection.

In the end, he committed murder to prevent exposure.

BEAVERS is chief of police in Atlanta.

He closed the red-light district.

In the last two weeks he has pulled five locker-clubs.

He has refused to compromise with crime.

Today the CHIEF has been suspended.

What think you?

While New York is putting a policeman to death as the result of his trafficking with the underworld, will ATLANTA witness the undoing of HER CHIEF because of his fidelity to his trust?

The power of liquor is frightful.

A few months back, in the city of Newark, Ohio, a mob, led by a negro, lynched an officer, Carl Etherington.

Etherington had done his duty fighting the liquor traffic.

Scarcely will the like happen in Georgia, though a few months back the negro paper in Atlanta joined the pack in the attack on the integrity of Atlanta's force.

Since then policemen have had to shoot more than one negro.

Lawlessness, seeping down from higher levels, is belching back a frightful tide of filth in black.

God pity those who know no better! God open the eyes of men to the shame of the thing that traders in booze and women are trying to put across in the capital of Georgia! God forbid that decent men let themselves be used in this!

James L. Beavers, as an individual, is neither more nor less than any other man to the members of this committee.

BUT THE CHIEF OF POLICE who put an end to PROTECTED VICE in this city—the chief who has maintained the MORALE of the force in the face of efforts to destroy its efficiency, because the chief would not compromise with crime—JAMES L. BEAVERS, the chief, who now has the blind tigers masquerading as LOCKER CLUBS facing certain destruction, unless they succeed in dragging him down—the chief who does these things, not because he likes them, but because it is the law and his duty—

This Chief of Police, in his fearless stand for civic righteousness and decency, embodies principles for which the Church of the Living God will forever stand.

BECAUSE of his courage, BECAUSE of his honesty, he is so deadly efficient that certain ones have determined TO GET RID of him at any cost.

And now the day of trial has come.

Nominally, James L. Beavers will be tried.

In reality, YOU will be tried.

ATLANTA WILL BE TRIED BEFORE THE WORLD.

YOU must decide. Shall Atlanta crown vice or virtue?

Shall liquor and immorality, or law and morality rule in the capital of Georgia?

Again we plead with our law-makers now in session in Atlanta!

SENATORS AND REPRESENTATIVES! Look at the seemingly endless turmoils which uncoil from the near-beer saloons and locker clubs in the cities of our state.

Will you not end these?

Take from the law-books of Georgia those monstrous hypocrisies known as the near beer saloon and locker club laws!

IF MEN say, as they unquestionably do today, regardless of law, that, so long as the state puts a high tax upon brewers and sellers of so-called near beer and upon locker clubs the state expects public officials and jurors to perjure themselves and permit the liquor trade, we beg you to repeal those laws licensing near beer and locker clubs.

Remove all doubt. Do it clearly, simply, plainly.

The EAKES-FULLBRIGHT substitute fails to touch the law as to near beer and locker clubs.

It is said—

BILLS were drawn and introduced in the senate and house, which, if enacted into laws, would remove all excuse, but these have been sidetracked because of the men who caused them to be introduced—because of some feeling growing out of the race of SPEAKER BURWELL.

We had no part in the speaker's race. But, if we had—if we had fought for or against SPEAKER BURWELL, at this juncture, we would say—"It matters not—In God's name pass the bills which will free Georgia from the shame of the rising tide of lawlessness!"

MEN OF ATLANTA—REPRESENTATIVES AND SENATORS of Georgia—what think you of conditions in the capital of your state?

Must we endure Beckerism in Georgia?

God forbid!

In that trial, nineteen centuries ago, it is written—

"There stood up certain and bore false witness."

And ever since, in the war between right and wrong, men have been found to "bear false witness" against the right, but never yet has the onward march of God been stopped.

Right ever conquers in the end.

CHIEF BEAVERS, though suspended, has no cause for fear.

Those who believe in right living and right thinking have no reason to quail.

The heart of Atlanta—the heart of Georgia—is sound.

BECKERISM cannot live in our midst.

Neither city nor state will endure compromise with crime.

They will uphold the chief.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Of all overworked women probably the farmer's wife is the hardest worked. She has so much to attend to, with very little help. Her work can be lightened if she knows the value of system and she should try and take a short rest in the daytime. A physician who became famous almost around the world, Doctor Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., the specialist on woman's diseases, for many years practiced medicine in a farming district in Pennsylvania. He there observed the lack of system in the planning of the work.

If it is a headache, a backache, a sensation of irritability or twitching and uncontrollable nervousness, something must be wrong with the head or back, a woman naturally says, but all the time the real trouble very often centers in the womanly organs. In nine cases out of ten the seat of the difficulty is here, and a woman should take rational treatment for its cure. The local disorder and inflammation should be treated steadily and systematically with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

For all diseases peculiar to woman, "Favorite Prescription" is a powerful restorative. During the last fifty years it has banished from the lives of tens of thousands of women the pain, worry, misery and distress caused by irregularities and diseases of a feminine character.

If you are a sufferer, if your daughter, mother, sister, need help, get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in liquid or tablet form from any medicine dealer today. Then address Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and get confidential medical advice entirely free. You can also obtain a book on woman's diseases, free. (Advt.)

ELKIN DRUG CO.

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU DEATHLY SICK

Stop using dangerous drug before it salivates you! It's horrible!

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful tonight. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, let them eat anything afterwards.—(Advt.)

Cured of Pellagra; Woman Is So Happy

Ratliff, Miss.—Ida Creel, of this place, writes: "I am enjoying fine health, better than I have in years. My weight is 116; when I began taking your treatment it was 98. I sure can praise your treatment; can eat anything I want and it don't seem to hurt me."

There is no longer any doubt that pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It is your duty to consult the resoureful Baughn.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with much mucus and choking; indigestion and nausea, either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., box 2002, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure. (Advt.)

PLAN TO SELL 60,000 MAXWELL CARS IN YEAR

Dealers From All Parts of the South Gather in Atlanta for Conference

Over seventy Maxwell automobile dealers from all parts of the south gathered at the company's warehouse on Madison avenue Tuesday for a conference with prominent Maxwell officials regarding the coming year.

"Sixty thousand cars for 1916," was the slogan. Heading the group of factory representatives was M. H. Howe, zone supervisor. Assisting him were J. P. Headley, assistant supervisor; and R. M. Rowland, of the publicity and advertising department.

The meeting was presided over by G. P. Hennessey, district salesman. It was announced that the Pegram Motor company, a well known local firm, had been selected agents for the Maxwell company in Atlanta territory for 1916.

The new 1916 model was placed on exhibition for the first time and was highly praised for its fashionable yacht lines, refinements and general nifty appearance. Prospects for a good business next year are very bright, according to the dealers attending, and a keynote of co-operation between the dealer on one side and the "factory man" on the other was noticeable.

CUBA WILL PRODUCE RECORD SUGAR CROP

Cuban Planter and Daughter Pass Through Atlanta to Lake Toxaway

M. F. Cueruo, sugar planter of near Havana Cuba, and lawyer in that city, passed through Atlanta Tuesday morning on his way to Lake Toxaway. Accompanying him was his niece, Senorita Amella Landa, a beautiful type of the Spanish aristocracy on the island.

Further than a shrug of her shoulders and the arching of her eyebrows the senorita would not allow herself to be interviewed by an American, but the senor spoke quite readily.

About the sugar crop of Cuba, he said: "It is the largest in the world ever seen. Three million tons would not be too low an estimate to make of this year's yield. On my plantation alone there will be many thousand tons produced. And the market too, because of the war, will prove advantageous to the entire country. Cuba has a great future; the people are awakening to the fact that when they work they are better off, and they are beginning to do today what they previously put off until tomorrow or some day in the vague future.

FAMOUS 30TH GEORGIA REUNION ON NEXT FRIDAY

Survivors of Noted Regiment to Gather at Riverdale, Special Train

The thirty-second reunion of the famous Thirtieth Georgia regiment will be held at Riverdale on next Friday.

While the survivors of the regiment, which followed Lee in the sixties, have grown fewer each year of the thirty-two that it has been holding reunions, the friends of the veterans have always made the reunion day a gala occasion and the attendance is always large.

A special Southern train will leave Atlanta at 8:30 o'clock Friday morning to take the veterans and their friends to Riverdale, and it will return late in the afternoon.

There will be a picnic dinner, a band concert, and speeches by a number of prominent veterans.

R. S. Osburn, of Forrest Park, is president of the Thirtieth Georgia Reunion association and A. P. Adamson, of Rex, is secretary.

SHRINERS ARE EN ROUTE HOME FROM SEATTLE

Atlanta Delegation Made Brief Visit to Frisco and San Diego

Atlanta will welcome back Wednesday the members of Yaarab temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, who are now homeward bound, after having attended the recent grand conclave of the Shrine in Seattle, Wash. Aside from their trip to the far northwestern city, Atlanta's delegation of Shriners paid brief calls on San Francisco, San Diego and other California resorts, to say nothing of the numerous stops made en route home.

From all reports received here, Yaarab patrol and band has made a magnificent showing in the west and along the route taken both to and from Seattle. The members will be met here by a large delegation of Shriners.

METHODIST STEWARDS HIT BLOW AT LIQUOR

The Atlanta Methodist Stewards' association, at the regular meeting at the Druid Hills church June 20, adopted, by unanimous vote of the 128 members present, the following resolution:

"Resolved, That we, the Atlanta Methodist Stewards' association, do hereby urgently request all the pastors of the Methodist churches of this district not to appoint any member to office in the church or Sunday school nor upon any church board who secretly or openly votes for or otherwise encourages and aids the liquor traffic."

BARTENDER IS ARRESTED FOR NOT LOCKING DOOR

Because he had failed to go through the formality of locking his front door at the hour appointed for the closing of near-beer saloons, Pat O'Toole, bartender of a Marietta street saloon, was arrested Monday night shortly after 11 o'clock and charged with keeping his place of business open after hours.

O'Toole explained that no business was being transacted, that he was merely checking up his daily receipts. He will be tried Tuesday afternoon in police court.

PHYSICIAN AND DRUG CLERK HELD BY COURT

Dr. J. H. Vining, a physician and R. H. Barrow, a druggist, were both bound over Monday afternoon by United States Commissioner W. Colquitt Carter on charges of violating the federal anti-narcotic law.

It was charged that Dr. Vining issued and Barrow filled prescriptions for excessive amounts of morphine and with too much frequency.

Family Reunion

The Sciples family will hold its seventh annual reunion at Rittersville park, near Allentown, Pa., on Saturday, August 28. Relatives and friends of the family are invited to be present.

THEATERS

Atlanta movie fans have their last opportunity Tuesday afternoon and night to see one of the finest and most dramatic photoplays that has been put on a local screen this year.

It is "Dr. Rameau" the new Fox film at the Strand theater. The star is Frederick Perry, a name new to Atlanta, but destined to become a favorite of favorites. Frederick Perry was the star of "On Trial" on the New York stage, and in "Dr. Rameau" exhibits a histrionic ability which for sheer power to grip his audience is unexcelled. And in the other members of the cast this same quality of producing an emotional strain is paramount.

"Dr. Rameau" itself is a play which starts with a terrific punch and holds one at high pressure to the finish. It is the tale of a great surgeon with no God but science. "Why thank God?" he asks his patients. "I cured you." Only when he finds that his wife has been unfaithful to him, his dearest friend has betrayed him, does he break. Maniac mad, he drives the girl he supposed was the daughter of his friend, home. Driven to the last ditch, he cries on God to help him. The ensuing scene in which his daughter's life is saved, is wonderfully tense.

Yesterday at the Grand one of the largest crowds that has recently packed the theater was present to witness the big film success, "Seven Sisters," with Marguerite Clarke in the leading role. Aside from the tremendous popularity of Miss Clarke, "Seven Sisters" is a splendidly told story on the screen. The photoplay is perfect and the support capable. Miss Clarke has splendid opportunity to display her versatility, and endears herself to her thousands of admirers with the progress of every foot of the film. Today is the last opportunity to see her in the "Seven Sisters."

For tomorrow another good program is announced. "The Blindness of Virtue," a startling photoplay, well produced. This will also be the bill for Thursday, and Friday and Saturday the offering will be "The Puppet Crown," a Paramount release.

MUNICIPAL PAVING BILL IS INTRODUCED IN HOUSE

Allows Property Owners to Pave Streets and Pay for It in Ten Years

A bill enabling property owners in the towns and cities of Georgia to pave their streets and pay for the paving in ten years was introduced in the house Tuesday by Representative John T. Dorsey, of Cobb county.

The bill provides the machinery and authorizes the mayor and council in all towns and cities of more than 1,000 population to use it. They are not required to use it, but can put the machinery in operation whenever they see fit.

Mr. Dorsey says the bill will do more to promote the building of good roads and streets than all the other laws on the subject combined.

Briefly stated, the bill provides that the property owner on a street may petition for a pavement, whereupon the municipal government invites bids for different materials and the cost of construction, awards a contract, and levies an assessment against the property to cover the whole cost, pro-rating each assessment according to frontage, etc. The contractor is required to guarantee the pavement for five years, and the municipal government sets aside a fund of 10 per cent of the cost, to be used as a maintenance and repair fund. This insures the life of the pavement at a minimum of ten years.

The bill, it is contended, contains many features for the safeguarding of the property owner and the municipal government, and provides for financing the ten-year installments in such a way that they can be disposed of to the very best possible advantage without depending on the contractor to discount them.

TOSSED DOG OFF PORCH; DRAWS TERM IN JAIL

For tossing a poodle dog over the porch banisters, using profane language and indulging in a drunken tirade, Tom Stacey, 670 East Fair street, was sentenced to serve five days in a cell in police station by Recorder Johnson Monday afternoon. Stacey was accused by his sister-in-law, Miss Norissa Chambers.

Exempt College Endowments

Every member of the Legislature who has the highest interests of Georgia at heart may be depended upon to support the bill providing for the submission of a Constitutional amendment to exempt college endowments from taxation.

This just and righteous measure passed the Senate more than two weeks ago with scarcely a dissenting vote. It is now before the House for conclusive action. Its passage will mean a new era of educational development, and consequently a new era of material and moral progress. Its defeat would be a disgrace to the State and a barrier to those forces which make for the people's broadest well-being.

The church colleges and universities of Georgia are dedicated to the service of the Commonwealth as truly as the State's own system of public schools. They are training thousands of young men and women in those virtues which are the basis of good citizenship and the life blood of true progress. They are performing the very kind of work for which the State itself spends millions a year. To tax the endowments of these institutions is like taxing the light of heaven. Georgia is one of the few States that now employs this churlish policy. Let the House, following the Senate's wise example, open a way to the abolishment of this shameful wrong.

More or less heat is to be expected during the open season for barbecue.

Likewise there will come a time when we shall quit exchanging notes with Mexico.

The Tech's Urgent Need.

The Legislature should not hesitate a moment to grant the Georgia Tech's appeal for an appropriation sufficient to maintain and operate the new power plant which generous friends of the institution have donated. This plant is worth upwards of two hundred thousand dollars. Its equipment is the gift of manufacturing interests in other parts of the country, and the building to house the valuable machinery is being erected with funds raised through popular subscriptions. Surely, the State can afford the modest allowance of ten thousand dollars to utilize a plant which it has received without a dollar's cost to the public treasury.

Several years ago the Tech's outworn power plant became so inadequate that the simplest work of the school was threatened with suspension. In this crisis the Legislature was appealed to time and again, but in vain. Then followed what has been termed aptly enough "a wholesale begging expedition." The result was a princely response from manufacturing concerns in the North and from industrial and commercial leaders in Georgia. Private interests and individual citizens did liberally what the State refused to do for its own institution. Machinery of the latest designs was donated and eighty thousand dollars for the necessary building was subscribed.

But if the magnificent plant thus made possible is to be of use, funds for its operation must be provided. That is what the Legislature is now asked to do. The House committee on appropriations has recommended the allotment of then thousand dollars for this purpose. Unless the appropriation is granted, the efficiency of the Tech will be seriously involved for lack of power facilities and the people who have rallied so generously to the institution's needs in this instance will be discouraged from future assistance. The Tech is the great dynamo of Georgia's industrial development. Its constructive educational service is of direct and far-reaching value to the Commonwealth. To refuse it the bare necessities of existence would be foolish and disgraceful. The Legislature should grant without delay this desperately needed appropriation.

A few more Georgia mules at the front, and the war will end in October, if not sooner.

It is significant that, as our trade balance grows, we plan for the expansion of the army and navy.

A Western & Atlantic Commission.

There can be no thoughtful difference of judgment, or matters of principle at least, as to the timeliness and wisdom of the bill providing for a commission "to ascertain, consider and determine," subject to the Legislature's approval, the terms and conditions upon which the Western and Atlantic railroad shall be re-leased. If the State is to deal successfully with this momentous piece of business, it must master in detail all the problems involved and must work out a policy at once definite and comprehensive. This is essentially a task for concentrated effort. The General Assembly, of course, must pass finally on whatever is proposed, but the great mass of the questions at issue must be weighed by men devoted especially to the purpose. Only thus can a basis for farsighted and fortunate action be reached.

This is the object of the bill which was introduced Monday by Mr. Andrews, of Fulton, and Senator Dobbs, of the Thirty-fifth district, who are the chairmen, respectively, of the House and the Senate committee on the Western and Atlantic road. The measure provides for a commission composed of the Governor, two members of the Senate, to be appointed by the President of the Senate, three members of the House, to be appointed by the Speaker of the House, and three citizens from the State at large, to be appointed by the Governor. The province of the commission, and the need for its creation, are indicated by the matters it would be empowered to consider and act upon. Among these are:

The term of years for which the lease should run.

The amount of the annual rental that should be required and the method of its assessment.

Whether the property in the hands of the lessee should be taxable, and if so, to what extent and in what manner.

What special consideration, if any, should be given the counties through which the road runs as compensation for the costs of litigation, or other special charges that may be cast upon them by reason of the operation of the road.

Whether the road should be double tracked and its grades and curves reduced, together with the estimated cost thereof; and whether this cost should be borne fully by the lessee or contributed to by the state, and in the latter event in what proportion.

An estimate of the character and cost of making such terminal improvements and other changes as would be adequate for the independent orperation of the road.

What, if any, property is owned by the Western and Atlantic railroad not useful for railroad purposes that could properly and advantageously be disposed of separately from the lease of the road.

What, if any, steps should be taken to assert the right and title of the state to any part of the right of way or properties of the rond that may be adversely used or occupied.

Each of these matters, it will be noted, requires sustained and searching inquiry, and each of them must be determined, in the light of broad and accurate knowledge, before well advised plans for a new lease of the State road can be made. Only the centralized effort of men especially commissioned can perform each tasks. Indeed, a large amount of expert knowledge and counsel will be needed, and to this end the bill provides for the selection of some person "well versed in the law relating to railways and their traffic, who shall be designated as director of the commission."

The present lease of the Western and Atlantic expires December 27, 1919. It is imperative, therefore, that plans for the future disposition of this great property be formulated without further delay. The State cannot afford to postpone until the eleventh hour a problem that involves millions of dollars and the vital interests of all the citizens of Georgia. It must be ready with well-considered propositions, and to that end it should authorize capable and trustworthy men to perfect well-considered plans.

At any rate the tone of the note will probably prevent an endless chain of them.

Editorial Echoes

A private letter from Berlin declares that the Kaiser's personal losses owing to the war are about $20,000,000. These are mainly due to the depreciation of stock in shipping and manufacturing concerns in which he is a large investor. The works of two great beer firms in Saxony and Bavaria, in which the Kaiser is one of the principal stockholders, are closed. The kings of Bavaria, Saxony and Wurtemburg and the grand duke of Baden, as well as other German princess, also have lost heavily.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The death of Edith Longfellow Dana, daughter of the poet and wife of Richard Henry Dana, the grandson of a poet, has brought to many minds the stanza from "The Children's Hour"—at Craigie House, Cambridge:

"From my study I see in the lamplight
Descending the broad hall stair,
Grave Alice and laughing Allegra,
And Edith with golden hair."

Miss Alice Longfellow is still in the famous old house. Laughing (Annie) Allegra became Mrs. Thorpe. Forty years ago the poet and his daughters were familiar figures in the streets of Cambridge; and what a lifting of hats there was when they appeared at a ball game on Jarvis Field. "The Children's Hour" first appeared in the volume containing the first series of "Tales of a Wayside Inn." (1863). In the Cambridge edition it is the first poem in "Birds of Passage, Flight the Second." In what year was it written?—New York Sun.

Russia's gold output is reported as increasing. That seems to be the case with all the European nations, and most of the output is in the direction of the United States.—Chicago Herald.

France

IT is easy and often misleading to personify a nation, to speak of it as if it were a man, to give it a man's attributes, define its character, and predict its actions from that character, as if it were a man. But a nation is not a man, it is made up of many men, all different, and in one generation the men are not all mere copies of those in another.

The folly of generalization must strike those who a few years ago were talking of light-headed, unstable, superficial France. It must strike them as they see the grim, tacturn, unshakable nation that goes so imperturbably and almost silently about its work, "such work as few ever had laid on head and heart and hand." They must see it as they note the transference to the French of the characteristics that in their generalizations they called Teutonic. They see a nation going to war with no parade, with no noise, with no vain glory or boasting, but with a set and indomitable purpose and a silent unanimity. There is loyalty in all the warring nations, but nowhere does a nation move as one man, nowhere does a single purpose animate every soul, nowhere does each act seem the act not of a nation but of a single colassal individual, as in France. There is selfishness and callousness in some parts of English life, even in Germany there are divided counsels, but in France a whole nation is a nation of self-surrender. France consecrates itself to the end in view.

Its heroism is not the heroism of individuals, but the heroism of a nation, and that nation fills the heart of every man in it to the exclusion of everything else. Its remorseless reconstruction of itself, its cold and steady decapitation of every weak or stupid leader, its subordination of all the things in life to one aim, and the steady and fateful way it has gone about the achievement of that aim, are not the acts of a volatile and irresponsible people. We are governed too much by phrases. Carlyle influenced us too far with his Gallic fire, comparable to the burning of "dry jungle and grass, most sudden, high-blazing," and his Teutonic fire, like that of "anthracite coal, difficult to kindle, but then which no known thing will put out;" one fire for "roasting eggs," the other for "smelting metals." How utterly false that contrast seems, as we look at the methodical, inveterate, imperturbable, undismayable people that is fighting today!

The losses of France have been more frightful than those of other countries, but no groan escapes her. She entered the struggle to give all she had to it, and not a murmur will escape her if all is taken. And this spirit animates not her governors alone, but the unknown men and women who are France, down to the least. She is unrecognizable by her portraits. They were painted by men who had 1870 in mind, and 1870 is dead; 1870, boastful, degenerate, vain and careless. Or they had 1793 in mind; determined enough, but passionate, headlong, empirical and visionary; and 1793 is dead. Long after 1870 they looked back at the story of the nineteenth century, with its frequent revolutions and its kaleidoscope of fads, and predicted the failure of the third republic, because an incurably restless, frivolous man, easily tired of every new fad he has taken up, will surely tire of the next one; it is his character. But a nation is not a man, and the headlong visionaries of 1793 and the dilettante cynics of 1870, who lived in a time when faith and works were dead, have passed away. The third republic has lasted nearly half a century, and grown stronger year by year; and under it there has grown up a great new people, for a new people can grow up in an old land. The drunken France of the nineteenth century is gone for good, and there rises where it lived and died

A people, sane and great,
Forged in strong fires, by equal war made one.

The President's Sleep

It is sleep, plenty of it, that Dr. Grayson believes must, in the main, constitute Woodroow Wilson's vacation.

"Eight hours' sleep is enough, I'll admit for most mature persons," says Dr. Grayson, "but not for the president. Mr. Wilson uses up so much vitality, such a tremendous amount of nerves and mental energy, during the day that it takes much more than the ordinary amount of sleep for him to recuperate in. Three nights running in which he does not get his full quota of rest means a depleted president.

"But how he does sleep when he sleeps! I never saw such a good sleeper! But he does that as he does everything else—hard, hard, hard!

"And we have to play him hard on vacation or he is thinking about the job. Woodrow Wilson's mind has got to be full of something and if it isn't filled with play, it is going to crowd in enough hard thinking to pad out all the empty corners.

"I know sometimes when I am playing golf with him—and I generally play with him myself only because then I know he won't be talking business and will consequently be giving his mind and body the complete relaxation it must needs have—he will be thinking about something he has been working on and will make a bad stroke.

"'What's the matter with me, doctor?' he will say. 'I can't play today at all.' 'No,' I will reply, 'of course you can't with your mind in Europe and your body in New Hampshire!' And back he'll come to the links with a jerk!"—From Cornish (N. H.) Letter to Boston Advertiser.

The Journal's Letter Box

Atlanta, July 23, 1915.

Editor The Journal:

Dear Sir: Let us hope the editorial in your issue of July 22, condemning the proposed bill against the instructing of negro pupils by white teachers will not be the last on this important subject.

Perhaps the little attention paid this dangerous bit of legislation by the public in general may be due to a feeling existing that the very nature of the bill would insure its downfall. Whether or no this be time the "stitch in time" principle may well be applied here and the public and press see to it that no possible chance is lost to crush this unjust measure.

There is an old saying "you cannot hold a man down unless you get down with him," and if our commonwealth is to continue to keep pace with and we hope, lead our sister states in acts of justice, right thinking and progress, we should see to it that its conscience be of that standard of purity which will not admit even the thought of such a suicidal policy.

Yours very truly,
R. E. BARNWELL.

A group of workmen were passing the dinner hour in a political argument. An interesting deadlock had been reached, when one of the men turned to a mate who had remained silent during the whole of the debate. "'Ere, Bill," he said, "you're pretty good at a argyment. Wot's your opinion?"

"I ain't goin' to say," said Bill, "I thrashed the matter out before with Bob Jones."

"Ah," said the other, "and what did you arrive at?"

"Well," said Bill, "Bob, he arrived at the hospital, and I arrived at the police station."—National Monthly.

WOMEN WHO DO MEN'S WORK

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WHILE war has caused a lull in the feminist propaganda in England and all other parts of Europe, it has brought to the women the opportunity—often the necessity—of doing the work of men. In both the army and civil life, women today are taking men's places, and it seems certain that one permanent effect of the war must be to modify sex distinction in many employments.

A few weeks ago, the Cross of St. George was conferred upon Madame Kokovtseva, now commanding colonel of the Sixth Ural Cossack regiment. The honor was awarded for bravery. Colonel Kokovteseva has been thrice wounded in action, but has returned to her regiment each time. She is the widow of a soldier, and is following her husband's wishes in continuing the Kokovtseva name in service. It is said that because of her womanly tenderness to the soldiers wounded in battle, they kiss even her shadow as she passes by, and under her leadership the most gallant charges in the records of the regiment have been made.

Alexandra Lagareva, a girl officer in another Cossack regiment, was captured by the Germans with seven men of her detachment. They were locked in a church. At night when all was quiet Alexandra herself killed the sentry with a stone. Under her leadership they recovered their horses and captured a band of eighteen Uhlans, securing some valuable documents from them, which Alexandra delivered to her Russian general with her own hands.

A certain French soldier's wife is known as Corporal Eugenia Buffat, and she carries the musket her wounded husband was obliged to lay down.

A Lithuanian woman named Olga Jehlweiserin is an experienced officer, having served under General Rennenkampf in the Japanese war. She is of special value in leading troops, because of her intimate knowledge of the country. Another Russian woman warrior retook a Russian flag from the Germans who had captured an advanced section of the Russian trenches. The Russian flag bearer was shot in the back. The woman saw him fall, and dashing between two Germans, secured the flag and shot both the Germans. She is known as "Yellow Martha," because of her heavy golden hair. She has taken an active part in three important battles.

It is claimed that over five hundred women are now enrolled under their own names in the Russian army, while the sex of over fifty has been discovered only when they fell. The greatest number of women are in the Siberian regiments.

But it is not necessary for woman to enter the army to do the work of men. While the men are at war, many women are doing the hard manual work on the fields and shops. Sturdy peasant women, too, have worked side by side with the soldiers in digging trenches for their protection. Where embankments of sand bags are thrown up, the women have hauled the sand, filled the bags and in many instances placed them in position.

Women chauffeurs in France are working with the army, carrying messages and officers from point to point. They have proved themselves versatile in the matter of making quick repairs, and in overcoming unforseen difficulties. Several women are now enrolled as wireless operators, while a much larger number of telegraph operators are doing the work usually assigned to men. At least three women aviators are aiding the allied armies in France. The aviators and chauffeurs are said to be women of wealth and fashion, who desire to give active aid to the government. Their work is not more valiant than that of the tender-hearted, strong-muscled French peasant women who dig graves for the soldiers left on the battle fields, and afterwards plant flowers above them.

Equally strenuous is the work of the German women in the fields, loading the hay to feed the horses of the army, and carrying the heavy sheaves of wheat to the granaries. Even the horses and oxen have been requisitioned for army service. A number of German women have also taken up the duties of railroad engineers and firemen upon trains for local purposes, while on the electric cars in a number of European cities, women are serving both as conductors and motormen.

Great barges, 120 feet long, sixteen feet broad and ten feet high have lately been utilized by the hospital authorities of Paris and Rouen for transferring wounded soldiers. The net work of canals around these cities renders this transportation comparatively easy. The boats are drawn by tugs, and women are doing a large part of the stoker's work in firing the engines upon these tugs.

In England, the number of women who are doing the work, which a few months ago occupied men, increased each day. In the Leeds bullet factory women are working long hours each day turning out bullets. In Glasgow, the places of the men in the great clock factories are rapidly being filled by women workers, who, under the supervision of men too old for army service, are now turning out the cloth of Tartan plaids for the Scottish regiments.

In the South Kensington hotels neatly uniformed girls have replaced the boy pages. At Paddington station women are acting as ticket examiners and also as railroad porters. This last work seems beyond feminine physique, but women are acquiring great dexterity in handling heavy baggage. They will tackle even the old-time "Saratoga" of the now infrequent American tourist, with an enthusiasm which is inspiring to the beholder. They are acting as carriage cleaners at Marlebone, and it is claimed, are keeping the railroad coaches in far cleaner condition than the men ever did. They stand in front of hotels and theaters and act as carriage openers at Selfide. They are running street cars in Glasgow and several English cities. The Brighton police force now contains more women than men, and in a large number of other English cities women are qualifying for police duty of every kind.

As recruiting officers, the English women are performing their most valiant service. Even the school girls are entering into this activity. A recruiting brigade in Cardiff, Wales, was headed by a delegation of school girls, bearing a banner reading: "My dad's gone to the front. Why don't you go and make your daughter proud of you?" In addition to this, a large number of companies are forming and taking regular drills to fit them for active service if the need comes. In the public schools several bands of girl scouts are going through the same drill as their brothers. Others are taking lectures on Red Cross work, preparatory to entering upon relief forces.

A unique activity is that of "stretcher bearers" of the "girl guards." Several companies of English girls have already crossed the channel to act in that capacity. They will be attached to the field service of the Red Cross. A stretcher will be assigned to six or eight according to their physique, and they will go out over the battlefield in advance of the ambulance, picking up the wounded men and conveying them back to the hospital camp. They will be able to reach places exceptionally where it is impossible for either the motor or horse ambulance to go. It is believed that they have a wide field of usefulness before them. They are likely to run heavy risk, as already some of them have gone upon the field while battle was still in progress.

In England, as well as in France, the post girl has now largely supplanted the postman in the delivery of mail. They are taking up the rural mail delivery on motorcycles and are proving their efficiency from every standpoint. Even the heavy mails and bad weather of the Christmas holidays had no effect in deterring women from the service offered by the postal authorities.

The milk wagon is likely to have a woman driver in London, as well as in the smaller towns, and while no record has come in of the icetongs being handled by feminine hands, it is doubtless chiefly due to the fact that less ice is delivered in Europe than in America. The blacksmith shops of many villages are now in the hands of women, and several public garages are run by women mechanics, who are making a large proportion of the quick repairs required by the motorist.

"Ruin in Childhood Fear"

BY H. ADDINGTON BRUCE.

IT cannot be too often or too insistently impressed on parents that if they would make sure of their children growing to healthy manhood and womanhood they must discipline their minds as well as safeguard their physical development.

Also, they must protect them as much as they can from severe mental shocks of any kind.

There are thousands of men and women suffering today from serious nervous and mental ailments simply because their parents failed to develop in them moral control, and allowed them to be unnecessarily exposed to distressing experiences.

Shocks during childhood are never completely forgotten. Kept alive in the subconsciousness, they may, and often do, wreck adult life by the production of disease symptoms such as morbid fears, obsessions, and even serious physical disorders.

Let me illustrate by giving a striking instance from real life.

To one of the world's foremost authorities on functional nervous and mental diseases, Dr. Pierre Janet, of Paris, there once was brought a woman of forty, thought by her husband to be hopelessly insane.

"My wife," the husband explained, "has a strange notion that the air is full of cholera. She is constantly washing her hands to rub off the germs. I fear there is nothing that can be done for her, for she has been this way a long time."

A careful examination, however, satisfied Dr. Janet that the case was not one of true insanity but of a hysterical obsession; hence curable, provided its underlying cause could be discovered.

This cause, he was well aware, was an emotional shock of some kind that had made an exceptionally profound impression on the poor woman's mind. He also knew that the chances were she had forgotten all about this shock, so far as conscious remembrances went.

In fact, when he questioned her, she could throw no light whatever on the origin of her obsessive dread of cholera.

But as soon as he hypnotized her and questioned her anew he gained exactly the information he needed.

She now remembered that WHEN SHE WAS A YOUNG GIRL, her mother, an ignorant woman, had compelled her to assist in preparing for burial the bodies of two persons who had died from cholera.

"They made a frightful sight," she cried. "They were all blue and green. Oh, frightful! Frightful! what if I catch the cholera myself.

Her voice rose in a shriek of terror, and Dr. Janet hurriedly dehypnotized her.

It is good to be able to add that, by "suggestions" designed to blot out this painful subconscious memory image, he eventually was able to work a complete cure.

Most parents, fortunately, do not expose their children to such extreme shocks. But shocks of far less intensity—such, for example, as fears engendered by tales of the supernatural—may have fully as disastrous an effect on a sensitive child.

Even religious instruction, if undue emphasis is placed on such themes as the devil and hell's torments, may prove, and often has proved, an effective cause of nervous and mental disorders in later life.

Watch carefully, therefore, the emotional life of your child. And begin, even while the child is still a toddling infant, to cultivate his powers of moral control, so that he will be the better able to withstand any emotional strain that accident may impose on him.

ANGER

BY DR FRANK CRANE.

THERE is no use telling you not to get angry; no use telling any red-blooded man that.

Indignation is a natural flame that spurts up in the mind, upon certain occasions, as surely as gasoline explodes at a lighted match.

All I say is—Wait!

Don't do anything till your heat is gone. Don't say words, nor pass judgments, until your brain has cooled down.

For most anger is the irritation of offended vanity. We think a lot of our opinion, and when one sneers at it it is as if he threw mud on our white duck trousers.

We have a high notion of the respect due us, and when it is intimated that we are nobody we want to smash something to show we are somebody.

We are never hungry, save when our pride is hurt.

Anger is self-esteem on fire.

So, flare up, if you must, swear and break the furniture; it may do you good; but go up to your room to indulge in this relief, lock the door, and stay there until the storm blows over.

Never write a letter while you are angry. Lay it aside. In a few days you can come back at your offender much more effectually.

Don't transact business in heat. When you are "mad clean through" it is your sore egotism that is operating, and acts prompted by egotism are usually ridiculous. Hang up the matter for a few days, and come to it again when your intelligence is not upset by your feelings.

One of the best things to say is nothing. When you answer a man he gets your measure; when you keep still you have him guessing.

The cool man, who has himself under control, always has the advantage over the hot man.

Even if you have to lick a man you can do much better if your head is clear of anger fumes. Wrath may lend a little extra punch to your blows, but self-control will plant them to better effect.

Anger dulls your efficiency. What you do goes wild. You have a lot of energy, but no accuracy.

Anger dims your eye. You see vividly, but what you see is not so.

Anger makes chaos in your thought. You are a crazy man. What you think in the egotism of anger you will pay for in the humiliation of saner moments.

Few good deeds have been done in anger, while all manner of crimes are due to the intemperance of wrath, such as blows, murders and war, "the sum of all villainies."

The first and greatest lesson for you to learn is to control your temper, and, if your nature is touchy, to resolve to take no action until the blood is cooled.

The Searchlight.

Surgeons are frequently surprised to learn that some of their most skillful and recently discovered operations were not unknown to the ancients. This is frequently indicated by the discovery of an old instrument, but unlike those of recent invention.

What is believed to be the oldest set of surgical instruments in the world has lately come into the possession of Johns Hopkins university, of Baltimore. It was unearthed in Kolophon, in Ionia, last year, and was in use by the Greeks at least 200 years before Christ. The instruments indicate a much higher knowledge of surgery than was believed to have existed at that period, and they are of excellent workmanship. Most of them are of bronze which was regarded as a sacred metal. When steel was essential, a piece of bronze was set into the instrument supposedly for ceremonious reasons.

The most distinctive instrument is a drillbow, used for trepanning the skull to produce an exit for evil spirits. This was an operation used to relieve madness and epilepsy, and the principle is in use now. An elevator for raising a piece of depressed skull caused by injury, polypus pincers for the removal of growths, a scoop and curette for gynaecological work, a cauterr and probes of modern types, were among the other instruments, which are considered of such great historic value that plaster models of them are being made for the British museum.

DUBLIN GIVES WARM WELCOME TO TOURISTS

DUBLIN, Ga., July 27.—A big meeting of tourists, accompanied by visitors, was held here Monday afternoon when a number of cars in the Dixie overland run, from Columbus to Savannah, arrived. The visitors were served dinner by the ladies of this city in Stubbs park. Twiggs, Laurens, Muscogee, Johnson, Wilkinson, Emanuel, Bulloch and Effingham counties were represented.

W. T. Anderson, of Macon, delivered an address to the committeemen, giving a short history of the highway proposition, stated that the one route had been chosen by Fort Valley, Americus and Thomasville to Tallahassee, Fla., but another route from Macon to Jacksonville was desired. The selection would depend on the merits of the road.

Mr. Frank Doster Dies

LUMPKIN, Ga., July 27.—Frank Doster, aged twenty-two, a popular citizen of this place, died here Monday. He was holding a position in Atlanta with Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose company, and came home sick about three weeks ago. He leaves a father, mother and one sister, who is taking a training course at Johns Hopkins.

HOUSE ADOPTS REPORT CLEARING JUDGE RUSSELL

Debate Continues on Bill to Exempt College Endowments From Taxation

By a unanimous rising vote, the house Tuesday morning adopted the report of the special investigating committee, completely exonerating Chief Justice Richard B. Russell, of the state court of appeals, on charges brought against him by W. T. Moyers, his former stenographer, and now an attorney practicing at the Atlanta bar.

The report of the committee, headed by Mr. Connor, of Spalding, stated first, that the charges had been proved groundless by numbers of witnesses of high and unimpeachable character, and recommended also that no further action be taken by the house in the matter.

The second and concluding section of the committee's report declared, that as the charges of Moyers were personally abusive in character they should be expunged from the record.

Practically the entire time of the house Tuesday morning, was taken up in debate on the constitutional amendment, already passed by the senate, authorizing the legislature to exempt college endowments from taxation.

Vice Chairman Blackburn, of the rules committee, who had the floor when the house adjourned Monday afternoon, resumed his arguments against the amendment. He was followed by Representative Culpepper of Meriwether, who argued at some length in favor of the amendment. Others who spoke for the amendment were Representatives Olive, of Richmond, and Atkinson, of Fulton. Other arguments against it were made by Representatives Anderson, of Jenkins, and Edwards, of Haralson.

When the house adjourned at 1 o'clock Representative Atkinson was speaking for the amendment.

NEW HOUSE BILLS.

The following bills were introduced Tuesday in the house:

By Mr. Conger, of Decatur—To provide for handling Decatur county funds.

By Mr. Blackburn, of Fulton—To create state board of plumbing examination.

By Mr. Conger, of Decatur—To abolish Decatur county treasurer.

By Mr. Young, of Tift—To prohibit poisoning streams and lakes.

By Mr. Young, of Tift—To obilish Tift county treasurer.

By Mr. Young, of Tift—To abolish Tift county board.

By Mr. Harris, of Washington—To amend constitution relating to introduction of local bills in the legislature.

By Mr. Davis, of Laurens—To create board of commissioners in Laurens county.

By Mr. Bullard, of Campbell—To create state warehouse department.

By Mr. Lunsford, of Lee—To abolish Lee county treasurer.

By Mr. Dart, of Glynn—To provide commission government for city of Brunswick.

By Mr. Webb, of Lowndes—To fix pay of jurors and bailiffs at $3 per day.

By Mr. Davis, of Laurens—To reduce Laurens county board to three members.

By Mr. Adams, of Pike—To abolish Pike county treasurer.

By Washington delegation—To amend fence law.

By same—To make solicitor of Sandersville city court ex-officio county attorney of Washington county.

By Mr. Smith, of DeKalb—To authorize counties to purchase live stock to promote cattle raising.

By Mr. Fullbright, of Burke, and Mr. Stark, of Jackson—To provide that proceeds of near-beer tax shall go into general treasury fund.

By Mr. Askinson, of Emanuel—To amend section 4041 of the code.

SEVEN NEW PRISONERS ARE COMING TO ATLANTA

BOSTON, July 27.—Oredrs for the transfer of all federal prisoners now in the state prison at Charlestown, to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta were received from the attorney general by United States Marshal Mitchell today. There are seven such prisoners at Charlestown, including W. J. Kelliher, who is serving a fifteen to eighteen year sentence for aiding in the wrecking of the National City bank at Cambridge. The others are short term prisoners.

Purchasing Agent Named

ROME, Ga., July 27.—The Floyd county board of roads and revenues has appointed D. B. Hamilton as purchasing agent at a salary of $50 per month. This is a newly created office, as in the past the duties of purchasing agent had been filled by members of the county board.

BABY SHOW A FEATURE OF FARMERS' CONFERENCE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ROME, Ga., July 27.—A baby show will be the feature of the annual farmers' conference to be held at the Berry school next Friday and Saturday. A large number of Floyd county youngsters will be entered, and valuable prizes will be awarded to the finest children.

Another interesting feature will be a round table conducted by Prof. J. H. Foster, the county farm demonstrator. Coincident with the conference is the meeting of the boys' corn clubs and the girls' canning clubs of the county.

TODAY'S EVENING STORY

THE BIG MAN

(Copyright, 1915, by W. Werner.)

As the door closed sharply behind her Eve Bradish stood on the threshold, unable for the instant to take another step forward. She seemed, indeed, to have come to the end of all things. Mrs. Van Dresen's shrill voice still echoed in her ears. "No, you needn't come for any more washings. You don't do 'em to suit me. After this you can pay the rent or get out." The color came into Eve's pale cheeks. She drew a deep breath that lifted her thin chest. Then resolutely she hurried away from the house and down the street. Four blocks below she turned into old Tannery lane, where a row of flimsy, small houses stood with their backs in a steep bank and their faces toward the creek, noisy with spring rains. All of these houses belonged to the woman she had just left and one of them was her home. Before it, upon the crumbling creek wall sat a child hopefully dangling a fish line into the yellow waters.

"I got one," he called, "for your supper, mamma."

She smiled. "Now get another for your own or you know I'll have to divide," was the reply.

She went into the house. There were two rooms below and one above, and almost no furniture. Eve took off her worn black hat and coat and sat down in the broken rocking chair. Suddenly she leaned forward and covered her face with her hands. But she did not cry. She was only thinking.

A year before she had had a pretty home and money to spend. The future looked very hopeful. Her husband was earning a thousand dollars a year and had prospects. Then suddenly the blow fell. He was run down by a truck one night in the foggy street and brought home to her, injured. Not seriously injured, it was thought at first, and yet no amount of medical skill seemed able to cure him. He went from hospital to hospital, from doctor to doctor. Their savings lasted until he died. Then Eve found herself with her small son, penniless without friends and with no way of earning her living. She had been carefully and tenderly reared for wifehood and nothing else. Life she felt had betrayed her.

For six months she tried to get work. In that time she had only two jobs, and those she could not keep. She sold everything of value she had in order to live, and when she had nothing more she took Hugh and got out of the city. She came to Westmore.

She came to Westmore because far back in her girlhood, before ever she met the man she married, she had known a Westmore man. He had been a student at the same co-educational institution with herself. For a year she had seen a good deal of him. Then he vanished from her life. Before he went, however, he had asked her to marry him and she had refused. "I don't want to marry a mining engineer," she had said, "and I don't love you enough." "That last is the only thing that counts," he had answered in his quick, intense way. "If you don't love me enough, of course you don't want to marry me. And I don't want you should. But I'll just tell you this, Eve, dear, before we part—there's never going to be any one else like you in my life—never." She had wondered since at various times if this were true. But as she had never seen Chris Strong again, or even heard of him, she did not, of course, know.

She had married Hugh because she loved him. Theirs had been a springtime wooing. They married, the child came. Then in eight years it was all over. She was bereft. And now here she was in Westmore, drawn hither by some strange influence of its name and Chris Strong's life there for which she could not account. For six months, ever since she had moved into the house in Tannery lane, she had paid for rent and fuel and such food as they had by washing. But little, delicate Eve, built for grace rather than labor though she broke her slender back for her exacting patrons, could not please. One by one the washings fell off until she had only that of Mrs. Van Dresen, her landlady. Now she had lost that, and she knew not what to do. Too proud to appeal for aid, she faced starvation. More than all, she faced it with Hugh. If it were not for Hugh—Well, there were deep holes at freshet time in the noisy creek.

There was a sound of small feet and a voice crying, "Mamma! Mamma!" She looked up. Hugh was running toward her with a large chub dancing at the end of his line. His small face was red and hot with triumph and joy.

"Take it off!" he shouted. "He's yours—for your supper, mamma!"

She detached the fish. "Such a beauty, dear!" she exclaimed. "How did you ever pull it out of the water?"

"I didn't," Hugh said. "The big man did it."

"The big man!" Eve said. She glanced from the window. Above the wall was visible a tattered gray hat.

"There! See?" Hugh said pointing.

At that instant the gray hat bobbed and there was a streak of silver through the air.

"He's got another!" the boy shrieked and darted away.

Half an hour later the gray hat-and-man disappeared, and Hugh ran in with a dozen fish streaming from a forked stick.

"The big man gave me all heshetd stick."

"The big man gave me all he caught," the child panted.

"Oh, he shouldn't have done that! you shouldn't have taken them," Eve remonstrated.

"But he wanted me to have 'em, mamma! He said he did. And he's coming again tomorrow."

The fish were very welcome. It was a long time since Eve and her little son had tasted anything so good. She felt heartened after the ample meal and with the prospect of a good breakfast before them.

"Tomorrow," she thought, "I will try to find something for a woman who is bright and honest."

Yet all next morning she sought without avail. And all afternoon there was no reassuring reply to give to her timid appeal for "something to do." Every place was filled. Eve went home discouraged. There were two fish left for supper and a little bread. Nothing else. And on the morrow the rent was due. She knew too well that she need expect no leniency from Mrs. Van Dresen.

Upon the stone wall that held in the creek Hugh sat patiently plying his fishing line. He did not see her. She stood a moment contemplating him. Then a great sob came up, and she turned into the bare little house. Through the first room she went to the kitchen, for it was time to start the fire for their supper. At the door she started back in wild astonishment. For upon the kitchen table stood such an array of eatables as she had not possessed since her happy housekeeping days with Hugh's father. With a gasp she sprang forward and began to undo packages. Flour, vegetables, butter, two plump chickens, a pyramid of canned goods, a flitch of bacon, tea, sugar, and fruit. And among them lying in plain sight was a ten dollar bill.

"My God!" Eve cried. "Who has done this? Who could have done this?"

She turned. Hugh's dejected little figure stood in the doorway. "The big man didn't come. And I couldn't catch a fish—" he began. Then he stared. "Mamma!" he cried in amazement.

"Yes, dear," Eve sobbed. "The angels have been here—no, I mean some blessed unknown friend has been here. Oh, Hugh, darling. See the food and the money, Hugh—the money."

A week passed and Eve had no identity of her benefactor. But she had paid her rent and lived with Hugh in comfort.

One morning, when Hugh sat on the wall fishing she came to the door to look at him, and saw the old gray hat bobbing beneath the wall again. Somehow she had the idea that the old gray hat belonged to an old gray head. "That's the man that gave Hugh his fish; I'll go down and thank him," she thought.

She stepped down to the wall. Hugh looked up. "Oh, mamma!" he cried. "See what a lot of fish the big man is getting."

At the sound of Hugh's voice the big man turned and glanced up at Eve. Their gaze, meeting carelessly, riveted in a tense look. In a flash she understood the meaning of the fairy gift of food.

"Eve!" said the man. He swept off the old gray hat from his fine head. Then with a leap he was on the wall beside her. "And I didn't even know it was you," he said.

Uneasy Conscience

A jovial negro was arraigned in the county court, Brooklyn, on a minor charge.

"Smith," asked the court, "did you ever commit a crime before?"

The negro pondered for a moment. "Well, yo' honah," he answered, slowly, "Ah can't 'zactly say, but Ah done got married one time."

Mid Summer Clearance

Revising Prices Downward On Summer Merchandise

Just now when you are searching closet, bureau or chiffonier for the coolest summer garments you can find.

We are thinking about new apparel for fall.

The season for selling these goods regularly is past its prime. We have large accumulations of garments that have sold down to one or two of a kind. These must no longer take up room here.

We have taken all surplus lots and reduced their prices almost without regard to costs.

All seasonable goods, and so desirable at the absurdly low prices put upon them for Wednesday, they will hurry right out.

Come in the Cool of the Morning

Suits at $9.75

A little earlier in the season their duplicates sold for twice or three times as much. In fact, there isn't a suit in the lot which sold for less than twice Wednesday's price.

That is one important thing to remember.

ANOTHER IS THIS: They are all suits of smart, stylish models, of fine wool materials, and are just such as women who are going away need.

The third thing is this—you may have unrestricted choice, regardless of former prices, of any checked, putty or sand or gray suit in stock Wednesday and pay only $9.75.

A wonderful offer, considering the values included.

LITTLE BEDTIME STORIES

By Thornton W. Burgess.
(Copyright, 1915, by J. G. Lloyd.)

A joyous mate, a downy nest—
Could anybody be more blest?

TINY the Warbler didn't think so. It seemed to him his cup of happiness was quite full to overflowing. And yet he discovered that there was still greater happiness for him. He discovered it early one morning when he went to have a peep at the downy nest while Mrs. Tiny was off hunting for her breakfast. What do you think it was? Why, it was an egg, the most beautiful little egg, with a little wreath of brown and lavender spots around the larger end. It seemed to Tiny that there never could have been before such a wonderful and beautiful little egg.

And the nest it was in was just fitted for such a beautiful thing. It was a dainty nest, for Tiny and Mrs. Tiny are very dainty little people, quite the daintiest of any in the Old Orchard, excepting Mr. and Mrs. Hummer, the Humming Birds. It was made of silver plant fibres, soft grasses, caterpillar silk, and the soft brown cotton that grows on ferns. Could there have been a nicer cradle for such a jewel of an egg?

Tiny looked and looked and then he shook out his handsome yellow coat and sang over and over again a simple little song of pure happiness. After this he hunted up Mrs. Tiny, for he felt that he had just got to share his happiness, and of course it was she who had given it to him. Together they hunted worms on the leaves of the aple trees in the Old Orchard and talked about the wonderful egg and the baby bird that would some day hatch out of it. When they had eaten all they could they flew back to that wonderful nest so securely hidden way out on a branch of an old apple tree. Tiny was first, for he just had to get back for another look at that beautiful egg.

When he reached the nest and looked in he had such a shock that he quite lost his breath for a minute. Then he gave a funny little cry that brought Mrs. Tiny as fast as her wings could bring her. When she peeped into the nest she was even more shocked than Tiny had been. There were TWO eggs instead of one. And one egg was twice as large as the other and not at all beautiful.

Tiny and Mrs. Tiny looked at each other in dismay. It was very clear to them that while they had been away a visitor, a very unwelcome visitor, had been to their nest and had laid that strange egg there.

"Did you ever hear of such a thing?" cried Tiny.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Tiny, "I've heard of such a thing before, but I didn't ever expect it would happen to me. What are we going to do about it?"

"Kick it out!" replied Tiny promptly. He hopped into the nest and tried his best to kick the strange egg out. But the nest was deep and work as he would he couldn't get the strange egg out. Then Mrs. Tiny tried and she was no more successful. And all the time they had to take the greatest care not to break their own beautiful egg. At last they gave up and sorrowfully sat and stared at the hateful egg.

"I'd break it only that would muss our beautiful nest all up," said Tiny spitefully.

"That wouldn't do at all," declared Mrs. Tiny with tears of vexation in her eyes. "We must think of some other way."

"Who do you suppose did it?" asked Tiny. "If we hatch out our egg we'll hatch out that hateful egg."

"We won't hatch it," decided Tiny firmly. "Let's go about among our neighbors and see if they have seen a stranger around."

So together they made the rounds of the Old Orchard, inquiring if any one had seen a stranger there, but no one had.

"THE playing is high tonight. The bankers are hard pushed. It seems as though luck is with the players tonight. Would you like to try?"

"I don't feel I should win tonight," he answered, laughingly. "And," his lips tightened over his slightly parted teeth, "I like to win. I like to clean up. I'll enter the game some other night," he said, a smile turning the corners of his mouth. "I shall come again, probably very soon."

"Oh, just as you wish—only I thought you might like to try your luck," she persisted.

"I shall come soon, and when I do, I guarantee you I'll make a clean sweep of it."

"Yes, of course," she said wearily. She had heard that tone of surety many times before.

He rose and she followed.

"Good night," she said, smiling.

"Good night."

He took his things from the waiter,

The District Attorney Tells Ellis Mason to Forget About the Gambling Den.

and as he started to go turned and said, "I shall see you again."

She bowed and moved off, as he turned and made his way toward the low door of noiseless hinges.

II.

"It seems almost incredible. I know—especially at a time when the lid is generally supposed to be screwed on tight, Mr. Bell, but there is a gambling joint in this city, right in the heart of the white light district, that is running wide open to those who are in the 'know.' Roulette wheel, dice, cards everything. I was there myself, last night—saw it with my own eyes. The police must be fixed or they'd be onto that lookout on the street—they probably get a rake-off. But, I'll start from the beginning so's you'll get it straight.

"I was down to a social welfare meeting last night and walked east through Delvin street for a car. I was about midway between Bradley and Histon streets when my attention was attracted by a limousine that drew up to the curb about 30 feet ahead of me. It stopped before a low brick structure that looked as if it might have been used as a private warehouse. There were no steps—no areaway—just an unremarkable old door as an entrance with No. 59 painted on it in letters half washed out by the rain. Two richly dressed people—a man and a woman, alighted from the car. The man gave his chauffeur a quick order. The car sped away, and the two started for that door. There was a big squinty-eyed rough lounging outside it who seemed to know the people, for he smiled and saluted as they passed in. I had slacked up my pace considerably in watching them, and arrived at the door just after they had gone in. There seemed to be something very queer about the whole thing—the automobile, well dressed people—the lookout and the old warehouse building, so I decided to take a peek for myself, and walked toward the door as though I had it for my destination. The big rough became suddenly very alert, and, walking toward me, shoved his face close up to mine in an effort at recognition. He looked doubtful for a moment and I decided to bluff it out. I waved my hand slightly toward the building, raised my eyebrows as though surprised at his interference, and then nodded my head knowingly. That seemed to fetch him, for he stepped back, said 'a'right,' and walked off a bit as I entered.

"When I got inside, I had to go down a fligh tof dark steps, through a narrow twisting passageway, and up another flight of steps—darker, if anything, than the first—until I came smack up against a door. Inside I could hear the murmur of many voices, and a click that sounded like the click of silver knives on plates, and I smelled food.

"I didn't know what was on the other side—but decided to risk it anyway, so I pushed open the door and walked right into the most magnificent dining room I was ever in in my life." From here on young Mason's narration to the district attorney is familiar to those who read the opening of this story.

The district attorney had listened with interest all the while, his face pale—his mouth tightened to a thin hard line. From time to time he threw sidelong glances at his assistant, noting with evident uneasiness his eager, earnest face, as he unfolded his story. When Mason was through, his chief turned slowly around in his chair, his face drawn and tense—his finger tapping positively the coat lapel of the young man before him.

"Mr. Mason, I want you to understand me thoroughly—there are no gambling dives in this city ,understand?—No gambling dives running here. Forget it."

"But I—"

"You saw NOTHING, I tell you. Forget it."

Mason rose, his face burnig, his whole figure showing resentment at the alli too obvious meaning of his chief's words. He bowed coldly—and opened the door leading to his own office, just as a messenger boy entered with a telegram for Bell.

III.

Ellis Mason sat at his desk, his fine, earnest face puckered in a look of amazed discomfort. So this was politics! This was the field he had entered two years before as an outlet for the splendid political passion—the passion for constructive legislation that had so obsessed him ever since his entrance to college. There he had studied law, political economy, government, ethics, all the branches of the science that had to do with the government. There he had made a name for himself as a young man of big ideas and corresponding ability. On his graduation from college he had entered the government service as a clerk in the customs. He had written two books on political economy, had given numerous lectures on "City Government," and had made himself so talked about in the newspapers that he had, a few weeks ago, by popular demand, received the appointment of assistant district attorney under Curtis Bell. He had felt himself to be getting along splendidly—had started to dream the dreams of aspiring, ambitious youth—dreams which in his case were something more than dreams—dreams that were possibilities, and now ——— Now, two weeks after his appointment he found himself crowded close to the rail by a chief who was shielding the very sort of thing he was elected and had sworn to wipe out! He was cut short in his reflections by an office boy with a message from his chief.

"The district attorney wishes to see you immediately in his office, Mr. Mason."

He arose and went to Bell's office.

Bell was standing by his desk, an open telegram in his hand, his face thoughtful but good humored, as though pleased with something that had recently transpired. He showed no trace of the resentment of a half hour ago, when he had so arbitrarily impressed his assistant with the assurance that "there are no gambling dives running in this city."

A Difficult Trial

"Yes," said the meek-looking man, "I've no doubt you've had some great hunting experiences in your travels abroad."

"I have indeed."

"Buffalo hunting"—

"Yes."

"And bear hunting"—

"Of course."

"Well, you just come round and let my wife take you house hunting, and bargain hunting with her. Then you'll begin to know what real excitement it."

Women Work Too Much; No Rest

By Edna K. Wooley

"WOMEN should learn how to idle," said the woman doctor, as she seated herself on the front porch and folded her hands in her lap.

"Seems to me that a lot of women don't do anything else," said the mater, who firmly believes that it's a crime for any woman to be idle for a moment. "The way they sit out on their porches around here doing nothing all afternoon"—

"Just what they ought to do," interrupted the woman doctor.

"I simply couldn't," quoth the mater. "I always have some sewing or embroidery or something to take up when I sit down. Why, that's the only way to get things done!"

"That's just it," declared her guest. "Women always think they have to be getting things done. They're the slaves of their consciences or sense of duty or conventions.

"One of the best indications of women's progress that I am observing now is the fact that some of them actually have the courage to sit out on the porch for one, two, or three hours in the afternoon, actually doing nothing! They are recruiting strength mentally and physically—storing up energy for doing their work better and quicker, and for accomplishing their duties better as wife and mother.

"For an hour, at least, every day, a woman should rest. She should sit, recline, or lie down, relax completely in mind and body; and the logical time to do it is in the afternoon after the day's work is done—not lying abed late in the morning."

"Do you mean that I should sit with my hands folded, actually doing nothing?" the mater demanded to know.

"Exactly," laughed the doctor.

"But embroidering is a rest for me," insisted the mater.

"It is not," stated the doctor. "Holding the arms in the position necessary is a strain on muscles in the back and sides, a strain on the nerves and on the eyes. You imperceptibly tire yourself whether you're doing fancy work or plain sewing. Also, that kind of work produces a sort of mental ossification that keeps a lot of women from new ideas, new impressions—destroys their receptiveness; and a woman doesn't amount to much if she isn't receptive—it's one of her peculiar, God-given talents."

"Don't you think women ought to work at all?" asked the mater in horrified tones.

"Certainly women should work. But most women have always worked too hard and too much. And when they play, they play too hard. The society woman, who is supposed to be a butterfly and always having a good time, has to be constantly under a doctor's care. The club woman never knows when to quit. The business woman tries to attend to business, her wardrobe, toilet, and society, all at the same time, and is apt to need sanatarium treatment when she's forty. The home woman has an idea she can go on forever without giving the machinery any oiling or rest. She breaks down for good at a time of life when she should have a lot of reserve force stored up.

"We have nervous, screaming children because we have mothers who don't know how to rest judiciously, and we have orderly homes with bad-tempered homekeepers who are the slaves of things—just things—instead of health and happiness guardians.

"Even in the recreations women don't rest. They must dress up and tire themselves out dancing or card playing or acquiring culture. Take a man when he wants to rest—he puts his feet up on something, sticks a cigar in his mouth and does nothing—perhaps doesn't even think."

"Men are lazy things, anyway," announced the mater.

"But they have a better time than we do," countered the woman doctor. "Did you ever see a man who really wanted to be a woman?"

Tommy—All right, dad, give me some more pudding and I'll sleep on my back!

"Yes, I know old Stimson well. He was a true friend to me when the clouds were lowering and things looked blue."

"Why, what did he do?"

"He loaned me an umbrella."

DRESS

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

SMART MOURNING COSTUME SKETCHED ON FIFTH AVENUE. NOTICE THE MONKEYS

NEW YORK, July 27.—It is almost an editorial crime to begin or end an article nowadays with a reference to Mrs. Vernon Castle. The printers aver that the type sets itself when her name comes down in the copy. There is no doubt, however, that she occupies a unique position as a leader of fashions. Whether or not we approve of the ideas which she introduces, the fact remains that she is regarded and copied extensively, and such is fame! Behind her winsome personality is a genius in dressmaking, whose ideas are fetchingly exploited by the dancer's lissome slimness. Knowing all this, the world has given her credit, if credit it be, for being the first to carry a monkey. Of course, it is of enormous importance to settle this claim to priority; so when I saw, quite recently, a well-known woman on Fifth avenue carrying three Siamese monkeys in a chiffon scarf, I realized that Mrs. Ralph Thomas, formerly Mrs. Frank Gould, also had a longing to lead the fashions; and then the reportorial fact sprang to my mind that probably Mrs. Castle had copied her!

However, it was not the monkeys but the charming mourning costume which was worth reporting, although to most minds the idea of the Siamese primates against black crepe to attract attention to themselves is startling, to say the least of it. Softest black taffeta composed the gown, which had long simple lines and ampleness to suit a slender figure. Just a little elaboration appears at the hem, which is scalloped over a ruffle. The big white collar is the feature of the gown. It is made of the new collar material called communion cloth, which, for the benefit of those who have asked, is explained as a fine, close species of organdie, of the sort that has been sacred to the first communion frocks of the little Catholic girls in France. It is also a familiar term to those in this country who know the far south, with its Catholic Latin traditions. Collars grow larger and larger; they are often cut to hug the neck all around up to the ears and then down again in the fashion of an old English "falling band," spreading out to the shoulders. Sometimes they are left open in front, and we should be grateful, as the prognosticators of the fall styles leave us very little hope of unrestricted throats for the coming season. Everything will button to the chin.

The mourning headgear of the sketch is very smart, with its tiny turban and long veil at one side. This is a French idea, which proves irresistibly becoming to some types of face. Mourning hats have a way of being attractive. Whether it is the crispness of the crepe which folds so well, or the distinction of the dull, unrelieved black surface which gives the smartness, the fact remains that even the cheapest display of mourning millinery shows wearable models. The little modistes of Paris, tucked away from tourists' eyes in the quarters of the work-a-day world, with their trim windows, one labeled five francs ninety and the other seven francs ninety, will show chic little toques and widows' coiffes of crepe, amid the unwearable horrors of cheap straw and obviously artificial posies.

Today's Family Affairs

By Mary Lee

"I READ somewhere that there is an old Chinese proverb which says adversity never walks alone, but is attended by industry and invention," said Mrs. Happy Homemaker, musingly.

"That is a whole lot more comforting than our sayings about misfortunes never coming singly, and things of like nature. It makes of adversity a sort of benign spirit, a stimulus to greater things.

"We housewives are learning lessons from our heroic sisters across the water. It might be said that it is becoming fashionable to be economical, and even the women who are not in the least under obligation to do so are finding it an exciting pastime to search out and try to stop the thousand little leaks which are always occurring.

"My dear little old French frien, Mme. Secour, was having tea with me the other day, and I asked her what she thought was the cause for the reputation of the French housewife for economy.

"Her answer was one word—soup.

"She went on in her delicious French English. 'Ah! it formed the part entire to walk along some day a-seek and behold repose there in—what you say—your pail de garbage, our beautiful potage. There it all is! The bones of meat, the carcasses of chicken, the juicy sweet heads of celer and the green tops of so fine a flavor, pieces of bread, vegetables, those prime vegetables of yours. You do nt peel, you cut off one-half inch of utside and throw all that good away! So what can you expect? We core here and see, and what do we say? We say—all Americans are not millionres, all cannot afford to throw away good food, so it must be the Amerian housewife is a wasteful and ignoran woman; and then we pat ourselves on the back (Is that how you say?) and we say "Oh! how much wiser are we."

"And when you hear us say we are wiser, and others tell you the same and ——Viola, ze reputation!'

"I felt both instructe and rebuked, and for once I had not word to say."

DAINTY CHICKEN DISHES

Chicken in Crock—Chicken makes a delicious summer meat, and one very delicate way to cook it is in a stone crock or casserole. Get a medium-sized bird, singe and draw it, and after the usual thorough cleaning put it whole in the cooking vessel. Add a good lump of butter, one white onion and salt and pepper. Steam gently on top of range two hours, putting in more butter if the juices are not sufficient to cook the bird; then add a quarter of a pound of mushrooms, skinned and stemmed. Let these cook twenty minutes without uncovering the pot, pour over the gravy, and serve.

If the chicken is at all tough it will need a longer cooking than two hours. All fresh mushrooms are cooked in twenty minutes.

Browned Fricassee—Clean a young fowl as usual, dismember it and throw the pieces in cold water and salt for ten minutes. Dry them thoroughly on a clean meat towel, salt, pepper and flour them and brown delicately in boiling lard or olive oil. The last gives the more delicious taste. When nicely browned, lay the chicke on white paper to absorb the grease. Then throw off all the top grease in te pan, put in a little flour, stir to a brown, and add two cups or more of stock made by boiling the chicken giblets with a cracked veal bone. Put the chicken in, and let it simmer slowly until perfectly soft.

Fried mush is excellent with chicken cooked in this way, and paprika, a sliver of garlic and a tomato and green pepper add delicate flavorsome for the epicurean taste. The vegetables are put in with the last hour's cooking.

Chicken Fricassee—Make a white fricasse, stewing the dismembered chicken until tender, thickening the gravy with a little flour, and adding chopped parsley. an onion must also be stewed with the chicken, and white pepper will give a better look than black or red. When cooked, cut up two hard-boiled eggs and put them in the fricassee, adding the pieces in cold water and salt for a little rich cream; cook after the flour thickening then minutes. Make a crisp pie crust and put the chicken in, taking care to pierce the top crust so the steam will escape. Bake a nice brown, and serve hot with dry rice.

News of Women and Society

Parties Planned for Tea Dance

A number of attractive visitors will be the incentive for several of the bright parties to be given at the Piedmont club Wednesday afternoon on the occasion of the usual mid-week tea dance.

Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson Brown of Berlin, N. H., who are visiting Mrs. Brown's father, Mr. Burton Smith, will be the honor guest in a party entertained by Mrs. Jack Thiesen.

Mrs. Robert Hunt has invited twelve friends to meet her guests, Mrs. William Douglas, of Jacksonville, and Mrs. Jay V. Carns, of Orange Park, Fla.

Miss Gladys Hanson Snook will be the central figure in the party entertained by Miss Sallie Malone, and many others will have guests.

Mrs. Jackson Gives Luncheon for Visitors

Mrs. Henry S. Jackson was hostess at luncheon Tuesday at her home on Pace's Ferry road, in compliment to Mrs. Ralph Binns, of Philadelphia, who is visiting Mrs. Edward H. Alsop, until Friday.

The luncheon table was daintily appointed in white and gold and the effective color scheme was further carried out in the artistic use of yellow-centered daisies and goldenglow, which filled a pretty basket placed in the center. The place cards were hand painted daisies and the bonbons were served in yellow flower cups.

Covers were laid for twelve.

Automobile Party

Mrs. Byron Bettis will entertain with an automobile party Tuesday evening in honor of Mrs. Charles Philip Gilbert, a recent bride. The guests will include forty friends.

To Recent Bride

Miss Annie May Jenkins will entertain informally Thursday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Charles Philips Gilbert, a recent bride. Mrs. F. I. Barford will also give a dinner Saturday evening in honor of Mrs. Gilbert.

Camping Party.

Miss Ellen O'Keefe, Mr. John O'Keefe and Mr. Jeff O'Keefe, entertained several friends for the week end at "Kamp O'Keefe," near Lithonia.

In the party were Mr. and Mrs. James D. Palmer and their guest, Mrs. Jesse Lewis, of Birmingham, Ala., Miss Lyda Nash, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brittain, Mr. Elgin Morrison and Mr. Wingate Battle.

Woman's Summer School

The Woman's Summer School of Missions of the Southern Presbyterian church, now in session at Montreat, N. C., began with a sermon on the theme, "The Value of the Christian Home," which was delivered by Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D., of New York.

The school of missions is conducted under the auspices of the Woman's Council of the Southern Presbyterian church. Mrs. Archibald Davis, of Atlanta, is chairman of the council and is presiding over the sessions.

The attendance is the largest in the history of the summer school, the delegates coming from all of the states of the south and from Pennsylvania, Ohio, California, New Jersey, North Dakota and Washington, D. C., and also from Porto Rico, Mexico, Brazil, China, Japan and Africa. The summer school will continue in session for one week.

Taylor-Bagley Wedding Plans

Many friends over the state are keenly interested in the marriage of Mrs. Margaret Gunn Taylor, and Mr. Henry Clay Bagley, of Atlanta, which takes place at the home of the bride's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Will Gunn, on Friday evening, August 6, at 9 o'clock.

The marriage will be quietly observed with only the members of the immediate family present. The rector of Christ Episcopal church, of which Mrs. Taylor is a devoted member, will officiate, and a special bit of sentiment will be introduced in the attendants, who will include only Miss Henrietta Davis as her mother's maid of honor, and Mr. Henry Walker Bagley, of Atlanta, who will be his father's best man.

Mr. Bagley and his bride will go to Savannah and will sail from there on Saturday, August 7, on the City of Montgomery, for New York, where they will spend some time, going to Atlantic City, Philadelphia and Washington, before returning home. They will make their home in Atlanta at Mr. Bagley's residence, No. 663 Piedmont avenue, after September 1.

A most cordial welcome will be extended the bride when she goes to Atlanta, as a permanent resident, where she already has made many friends, having spent several months with her cousin, Mrs. A. W. Hodnett, on Piedmont avenue, and having been a charming figure at many of the club affairs. She is a woman of unusual grace and charm and will make a lovely acquisition to the ranks of Atlanta matrons.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips McDuffee and Dr. and Mrs. Marion Benson, of Atlanta, will come down for the wedding.—Macon News.

Franternity Dance

The A. T. O. fraternity will entertain the members of the college set at an informal dancing party Friday evening at their chapter house.

IMPROVEMENT CLUB PLANS MELON PARTY

The Fifth Ward Improvement club, at its meeting Thursday night, August 5, will have an innovation in refreshments, followed by a watermelon cutting.

Mayor Woodward, members of the city Council, the park board and the board of education will be invited to attend and make talks on matters of interest to the members of the club.

FALL HATS DID YOU SAY! HERE THEY ARE! FIRST CROP OF THE SEASON

BY BETTY BROWN.

Dame Fashion is going to see to it that no one's disappointed in the matter of hats this fall. There are broad trimmed, drooping hats for the girl who likes a picturesque frame for her face; there are perky little tri-corner turbans for the girl who likes a hat with a saucy tilt to it and there are hats betwixt and between in size, and richly trimmed to suit "Everywoman."

For the early season the wide brimmed, simply trimmed hat will have supremacy, but with winter's approach the small, close fitting turban will come into its own, and milliners who foresaw England, Spain, Japan, Russia, Iceland, Italy and America, he native costume of each being shown.

The upper hat in the group shown here is a reminder of the "Merry Widow" of pleasant memory. It is black velvet simply ornamented with colored porcelain beads; a band of white chiffon lines the droopy brim.

The tri-corner hat at left is also black velvet, with the dove of peace—wings and breast—perched jauntily on its crown.

At right is a sand color panne velvet with a feather ornament capped with black jet from which juts an aigrette.

MR. HUMPHREY'S WILL IS SHORTEST ON RECORD

All Property Left to Mrs. Humphrey Who Is Made Executrix Without Bond

The will of the late Mr. William G. Humphrey was probated late Monday afternoon by Ordinary Thomas H. Jeffries, and is said to be the shortest will on record. It states simply:

"I hereby give and bequeath all my possessions to my beloved wife, Jeannette C. Humphrey."

Mrs. Humphrey is made executrix without bond. No appraisement will be made of the estate, which is said to be of considerable value. Mr. Humphrey was a member of the firm of Robinson-Humphrey-Wardlaw, and was prominent in local political and business circles. He died several days ago near his former home at Toledo, O.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY BY AUTOMOBILE SOON

On August 31 146 Routes Will Be Concentrated Into 73 Pay Raised

Rural mail delivery by automobile for nine months out of the year will be started in Georgia beginning August 31, when 146 routes will be concentrated into 73, each driver being given a longer route but having his pay raised from $1,200 to $1,800 a year.

The mail under the new system can be delivered quicker and in greater amount, and thus will, it is said, result in greater saving to the government and better service for the public.

The idea was worked out by Postmaster General Burleson, and is one of the progressive policies introduced by him into the department.

WILSON GIVES UP GOLF AND HANDLES BUSINESS

CORNISH, N. H., July 27.—President Wilson gave up his usual morning game of golf today and was at work on official business soon after breakfast. He planned to remain indoors most of the day.

INTERESTING GOSSIP OF INTERESTING PEOPLE

Germany and Austria had no place in the pageant of the nations which was a feature of "Fashion's Passing Show," given Saturday afternoon at Rose Cliff, the summer home of Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, at Newport, for the benefit of the Secours National. The pageant had places for France, China, Holland, England, Spain, Japan, Russia, Iceland, Italy and America, he native costume of each being shown.

The fete, which was novel in its idea, was a beautiful affair.

The idea was that of Mrs. Oelrichs, and the committee headed by Mrs. Whitney Warren had been working for weeks to make the affair a success. This it did in every sense of the word. The weather was perfect and no better place could have been selected than the home of Mrs. Oelrichs, for the arrangement of the terrace and its surrounding lawns, trees and fountain made a natural stage setting.

The committee had the co-operation of about eight of the leading costumers, and the kowns and costumes that had been prepared for the occasion gave an excellent idea of what the coming fashions are going to be this summer and autumn. The display of gowns was intermingled with dances by Miss Lydia Lopokova and twelve dancing girls, and the programme for the afternoon and evening were so varied that many of the summer colony and members of the social set were present at both performances.

The entire production was staged by Richard Ordynski, the Polish producer. The first number of the afternoon performance was called "Looking Into Fashion's Mirror." The opening scene, a seashore scene, "Habits de Bain," consisted of three parts, Neptune's Daughter, Charm of the Ocean, and Sea Foam being the costumes. "A Game of Tennis at the Casino" showed two tennis costumes, the queen of sports and a summer day. "The Winter of the Tombstone" had a golf suit, the lido.

Polo was illustrated by two suits, gin rickey and high ball, and the act was named "A Girl and a Goal in Sight." The most pretentious of the scenes was "Afternoon Tea in the Gardens of the Trianon," fourteen costumes being shown, including Saros, A Request, Baby Mine, I'm Lonesome, Wesna, Dorasia, Anteuil, Moscovite, La Plage, Tokio, Castino, The Dawn of a Tomorrow (a group of six autumn suits), Five o'Clock Tea and Newport. The concluding scene of "Looking Into Fashion's Mirror" was "The Daughters Bride."

Honor Bestowed on Northern Woman.

Mrs. Henry Osborn Taylor has been elected a fellow in perpetuity of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in recognition of her gift of the wonderful collection of Japanese prints made by her brother, Samuel Isham. It was Mr. Isham's wish that the pictures be given to the museum. Collectors of Japanese prints have been filling the museum ever since these remarkable specimens have been received. Frederick W. Cookin writes interesting things concerning them in a recent issue of the Bulletin.—Exchange.

Fire Near Waycross

WAYCROSS, Ga., July 27.—Fire of unknown origin this morning caused damage estimated at $3,000 in a suburb known as Old Nine, threatening for a time to wipe out several blocks. D. L. Keen and Mrs. H. S. Dubose were the principal losers. All fire fighting equipment was needed to check the flames.

Market in New York Closed 1 Point Off to 6 Points Up From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 27.—Liverpool failed to fully reflect the weakness in the market over the Lecianaw incident yesterday, but because of private reports of good rains in parts of Texas, the local market for cotton opened 3 points lower to 1 point higher today, with a steady undertone. Subsequently Wall street and other buying strengthened the market and prices sold up several points over last night's close. Fair weather with stationary temperatures was predicted for the greater part of the belt, this being considered favorable with the exception of Texas, where general rains are needed. At the end of the first half hour the market was quite firm with prices about 7 points net higher on good support from Liverpool, Memphis and Wall street interests.

After 11 o'clock the market continued steady with only a small trade and around middle last figures, 8 points higher, being established somewhat by the absence of any general precipitation in Texas. Unofficial private advices show further scattered rains in that state.

Later recession at 11:30 o'clock caused a symmetric drop here to 9.07 for October or within a point or last night's close.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Employment of Labor is Now Better Than in 12 Months, According to a Statement of L. P. Marquart, President of the Georgia Federation--Mechanics in Building Lines Are Steadily Employed--Two Residence Sales

That general conditions are improving regardless of a contrary belief in some quarters is shown in a statement made Tuesday by L. P. Marquardt, president of the Georgia federation of labor, on the labor situation.

Mr. Marquardt says that organized labor is better employed now than it has been in the past three months, and the same is true of the unorganized. In fact, when in some lines of work workmen are at a premium, with the condition last year at this time the case is altered, when thousands of men were thrown out of work and the country was blue over the prospects for fall.

Mr. Marquardt says that the demand for bricklayers is stronger than the demand for men in any other workmen in supply. Capable carpenters are busy, the other building lines, including electricians, are fairly well employed.

The situation of the machinists is also greatly improved. The Southern shops, for instance, are now running three days instead of one day a week. The condition in the job shops, however, is not so good.

A great deal of the improvement is due to the betterment of the building business, which Mr. Marquardt roughly estimates employs 30,000 men in Georgia. He also says that the effect of better employment has improved business, according to reports he has received in one or two instances.

He also has reports from Macon, Augusta and other Georgia points showing that the improvement in the labor situation is also prevalent outside of Atlanta.

Material men are also feeling the effect of increased building.

On Monday, when the permit for the Thurmond building on Whitehall street was issued, the month's value to date was increased to $85, which compares with $495,000 for all July last year, a gain of nearly 20 per cent.

Building and the improvement in the employment situation are now the most encouraging business barometers, and real estate is bound to feel the effect. SMALL SALES.

Two residence sales went to record on Tuesday. Mrs. Lula M. Nicholes sold to Mrs. Clara B. Brown, No. 260 East Fourth street, a residence 40x132, lot 40x132, for $6,000, and J. H. Daniel sold to Mrs. Minnie W. Rainey a residence on North avenue, 300 feet west of Jackson street, the lot being 50x195, for $5,000.

STOCKS

Bethlehem Steel, Car Foundry, Crucible Steel, Goodrich Rubber and Sugar Strong

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 27.—A broad buying movement lifted prices quickly in the first half hour of trading today. The demand ran largely to the group of specialties that has figured most prominently in the dealings recently and a number of new records were established. United States Steel was bought in blocks of several thousand shares and rose to 65¾, an advance of a point and the best figure since it has been on a non-dividend basis. Bethlehem Steel was carried up 11½ to 224½. Baldwin Locomotive 1¾ to 84½, Can 3¼ to 67¼ and Alla-Chalmers preferred 1¾, all now high records. Many other active specialties made gains of 1 to 4 points. The railroad list was dull.

After the middle reaction the war stocks started up again in the same spirited fashion that has distinguished them for months past. Bethlehem Steel was the outstanding feature, gaining 11 points in the final hour. The recent chronic weakness of the principal railroad stocks was overcome in the final hour. St. Paul mounted 5½ points, Canadian Pacific 4 and others 1 to 2 points.

The closing was strong.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 27.—The United States Steel corporation today declared its regular quarterly dividend of 1 3-4 percent on the preferred stock. No action was taken on the common stock dividend.

Total earnings of the corporation for the second quarter of 1915 were $27,950,055. The net income was $20,311,584. The surplus was $8,267,645.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Report, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Picayune says: While the weather is the dominating factor in the situation at the moment, and no doubt conditions and conditions during the past week or ten days have not been favorable to the crop owing to the absence of rain and the presence of large amounts of grass, yesterday show plainly that war incidents may at any time become a disturbing influence that will set aside all ordinary conditions by which the market has been governed for the period of the season. The relations between this country and Germany are fully appreciated and yesterday's report to the effect that an American ship had been torpedoed was sufficient for the moment to overcome all ordinary market influences. It is said that when it was known that the crew of the ship had been saved and that the cargo was presumably contraband a better feeling prevailed. Evidently the incident served to emphasize the fact that the market may be upset at any moment by the conduct of the war during the tension with Germany to the darkening.

With regard to the growing crop, although the news recently has been favorable the estimate of the weather and cool winds, there is still a strong belief in a bearish bureau report on conditions of July 25. This belief restricts support to the market and keeps trading very narrow. The Memphis special reports the deterioration of 1.1 points for the month, placing the condition at 79.2. In sections of Alabama and the South Atlantic states the crop is spotted, due to insufficient supply of fertilizer, and rain is badly needed in central and southern Texas where the plant is shedding and the true test for top is becoming.

Exports to Europe are picking up again, from all ports since Friday 122,000; last year 11,000, since August 1, 3,257,000 against 9,000,000 last year. Advices from Galveston are to the effect that prospects are favorable for a large export movement of cotton in September, which is expected in the handling of ocean freight rates.

A dispatch to the London Morning Post from Stockholm says: "The British government has granted permission to the Swedish cotton steamer Haparanda, sailing to Sweden 55,000 bales of cotton, now being held in English ports, provided assurances and guarantees are given that the cotton will not be re-exported.

The weather map of the cotton belt yesterday continued generally clear and the indications are fair weather, with stationary temperatures over the southern states today and tomorrow.

W. D. Lewis, president of the Texas Farmers' Union, says that in the east and south Texas, reports that the cotton crop throughout the state is in good condition, poor. He predicts that Texas will raise less than 3,000,000 bales the coming season.

A slight cloudy south Texas, fair rest of belt. No rain except at Galveston and a light shower at Fort Worth. Temperatures: One-tenth of an inch.

Expert judging market pending German reply and issuance of government report. Believe will find this report opposition. Impossible to see how any cotton will do better. Present low prices discount many bearish features.—H. D. Burnham.

New Orleans—Bears working the market with a few reports of showers in Texas. They are too isolated and too light to do anything. Map shows no indication for any change in the weather west. Washington predicts a week of fair weather and noon weather reports show not even showers except a light sprinkle at Temple.—Kofler.

11 a. m. bids in New York were as follows: October, 9.11; January, 9.46; March, 9.70.

12 m. bids: Spot, unchanged to 1 point lower; October, 8.95; January, 9.30; March, 9.52.

Price Current—"Crop report says one inch rain at Taylor, Texas.

Market not generally depressed from yesterday's market but lacked interest large. Any favorable break from interest large. Any favorable break from interest news would cause big advance.—Hubbard Bros.

Forecast: Virginia, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; probably local showers in the extreme north portion tonight and Wednesday; not much change in temperature; light southeast winds on the coast.

Tennessee, Kentucky—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday.

Louisiana—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; light to moderate winds on the coast.

Arkansas—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; not much change in temperature.

Oklahoma—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; not much change in temperature.

Texas—Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday; light to moderate variable winds on the coast.

West Texas—Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday, probably showers in west portion. Temperature probably not much change.

New Mexico—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday, probably showers in west portion. Temperature not much change.

Arizona—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; light to moderate variable winds.

Telegraph companies report raining at Kenney, Yoakum, Austin and San Antonio, but report does not say how much.

STOCK GOSSIP

Dow, Jones' summary: Lord Robert Cecil, in British house of commons, intimates Great Britain out of war loan to contend that Russia to issue $600,000,000 loan. United States Steel quarterly statement and dividends after 3 o'clock today. Australia to issue $100,000,000 war loan at 4½ per cent. Reports of steel and iron products in May 1915 totaled $26,383,786, highest record since May, 1913. Definite steps toward settlement of Canadian Pacific will be taken by United States in the near future. Average of twelve industrials 92.71, up .30; twenty railways 90, off .16.

E. F. Hutton & Co. say: Yesterday's violent break shook out weak accounts, but it remains to be seen whether it has stopped overspeculation in war stocks. The Steel statement is due this p. m. Estimates of earnings are as high as 7 from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 for the quarter. There was evidence of recurrent interest in the Canadian Pacific. Third Avenue for the year ending June 30 shows a surplus of $900,523. It was recommended last winter by a committee of stockholders that stock be placed on a 4 per cent basis, not later than October, 1915. Directors since that the company can pay this dividend and carry over a surplus. Norfolk and Western is the conspicuously strong railroad stock. Earnings are large and directors interested who expect to see much higher prices. The stock fell slowly from same position of trading—one-fifth railroad and four-fifths industrials. There are intimations from London that the next dividend on the Canadian Pacific will be at the rate of 8 per cent.

Understand that the Pennsylvania railroad earnings for June will be the largest in the history of the company.

The report that the American Hide and Leather company directors are earning in the neighborhood of 10 per cent on their preferred stock is one of the few companies that is retiring its bonded debt. Regular dividend declared on St. Paul.

Weather Conditions

Forecast till 7 p. m. Wednesday:

Atlanta and vicinity: Fair tonight and Wednesday.

Georgia and Alabama: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; not much change in temperature.

Flow weather continues to prevail over the cotton belt though some stations in southern Florida and in southern Texas reported light showers. The atmospheric pressure is high over the lakes, but it is now accompanied by much change in temperature. Light showers have fallen in numerous stations across the northern portion of the United States from the Atlantic almost to the Pacific coast.

A moderate disturbance is central over the middle plateau region. Conditions are controlled by unsettled weather in the west.

Temperatures have not changed materially and remain only moderately high in the southern states.

Another fair and generally clear day is indicated for Atlanta and vicinity, with light easterly winds. The temperature will range between 74 degrees and 88 degrees on Wednesday.

C. F. von HERRMAN,
Section Director.

GRAIN

Wheat Closed 7-8 to 1 3-8 Cents Higher--Corn, Oats and Pork Up--Lard Steady

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, July 27.—Unsettled weather in the domestic harvest region led to higher prices today for wheat. There was also a decided falling off in the European visible supply and it was said that considerable rain from India would be light. On the other hand, the conditions were against the development of black rust. After opening ½ to 1¼ higher the market scored additional gains, then reacted to a moderate extent.

Subsequently word that black rust infection was spreading in Minnesota and North Dakota brought about a fresh upturn in wheat. Many reports were received telling of serious damage by wet weather in Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri. The cash demand was strong.

Corn rose with wheat and as a result of cool temperatures. Pit speculators, however, were selling on the upturn. Opening prices, which ranged from ¼ to ¾ cent higher, were followed by a setback and then a rally.

The corn market derived additional strength, influenced a good deal by the smallness of country offerings. Reports of fairly good rains in eastern demand. The close was firm at ½@¾ cent net advance.

Oats kept within narrow limits. The market, though, reflected the strength of other grain.

Day Blanks Chicks in Final Clash in Memphis; Team Not Scheduled Today

Day's Hurling Downs Chicks In Final Game

Memphis Gets but Six Hits and Are Unable to Score on Former Traveler--Kaufman and Lee Do Scoring for the Crackers

MEMPHIS, July 27.—Pitcher Virgil Jay, lately obtained from the Little Rock Travelers, pitched a fine brand of baseball in the last game of the series between the Crackers and Chicks Monday afternoon. Furthermore, the Crackers played a tight fielding game back of him. As a result Day is credited with a shutout victory over the Chicks. The score was 2 to 0.

The sandy-haired Arkansan pitched one of the best games he has shown since first he entered the Southern league. The Chicks are credited with six hits against his delivery, but two of these were of the scratch variety and were the results of speed on the part of the batter getting to first rather than of good clean hitting.

In only one round did the Chicks make any pretentions of troubling the Cracker slabman. In the third, Baldwin led off with a single to center. Mitchell was credited with a hit on a drive that got by McDonald, but Baldwin got no further than second. Robertson lifted an easy pop to Day, but Allison beat out a roller toward second filling the bags. Catcher Rumler then helped Day out of a hole by nipping Baldwin off third with a quick throw to McDonald. Cruthers rolled to Bisland and Allison was forced at second.

Neither of the two runs registered by the Crackers was earned. In the fifth, Kauffman grounded toward third and when Baldwin shot the ball to first he hit Kauffman. Before Bibel recovered the ball the first sacker had reached third. Rumler drove a long fly to Allison and Kauffman counted.

In the following inning with one man gone, Leonard Robertson for a pass and promptly stole second. Moran pasted a long double to left scoring Lee. Manning's liner went directly toward the box and Robertson grabbed it, throwing to second in time to catch Moran off for a double play.

Big Field for Harness Stake

DETROIT, Mich., July 27.—The field in the chamber of commerce $5,000 stake today was the largest in the history of that stakes. Fourteen horses were named to start, and it was considered that any one of six had a chance to win. The stake, which since its inception had been for 2:13 class pacers, was raised to the 2:07 class.

The other events were 2:05 pace, $1,000; 2:13 trot, $1,000, and 2:22 pace, $1,000.

After the first three of Monday's Grand Circuit races had been disposed of in straight heats, three starters in the final number fought one of the prettiest battles seen here in years, going the five rounds to a decision. The track, heavy at the start, dried out later in the day.

Only three horses went to the post for the fifth race. Margot Hal acted badly in the first two heats, which the Climax won in hard drives. In the third heat Mr. Mitchell took the lead at the half mile and held it to the wire. Fred Russell led all the way in the fourth, Margot Hal breaking just as she came alongside the judges' stand. Margot Hal led to the half in the final mile, but tired and Margot Hal went to the front and showed to the wire. The Climax colt took a hard floundering to finish in front of Fred Russell, who had broken badly but was coming fast.

WOOD'S RETURN TO FORM BOOSTS RED SOX CHANCES

Although the Braves are still a doubtful proposition, Boston hopes to root for a world's championship again this fall. The Red Sox are on their way to an American league pennant.

Will they cop?

We think we know part of the answer. If Joe Wood is right the red hosed men of Carrigan should win easily. With Wood, Leonard, Collins, Foster, Shore and Ruth, the Sox are well equipped in the box. We don't even count Vean Gregg, and he may be a bear at the finish.

But while all these pitchers are stars, none has ever attained the form that made "Smoky Joe" Wood the American league's greatest pitcher in 1912. Good critics aver that Joe had more stuff than the great Walter that year. Certainly he had more than the Giants cared to see in the fall.

Wood has never "come back" since that world's series until this summer. In 1913 he was stricken with appendicitis and had to undergo an operation. That deprived the Red Sox of his services that season.

Last year Wood was troubled with a lame shoulder. He tried many treatments, but couldn't get the kinks out. Most of the summer he rested. His occasional starts were pitiful. Everybody said "Smoky Joe" was done. But he has fooled 'em.

Joe proved that he is not in Ed Walsh's chronic state when he made a careful start this season and gradually improved. He took things easy in spring training and was not exposed to the raw east winds in Boston. He gradually thawed out as the hot weather sank into the national pastime, and recently he has been the same old Joe—the possessor of bullet-like speed and a "hop" on his fast one.

A world's champion team needs a pitcher who stands out above his fellows. Mathewson carried the Giants through for years; Johnson has labored in a hopeless cause in Washington; Alexander is Philadelphia's hope for the Quaker City's first National league pennant; Bender and Plank were to the Athletics what Matty was to the Giants, Brown to the Cubs, and Donovan to the Tigers. So, if Joe Wood is right the Red Sox should cop.

Leonard, Shore, Ruth and Foster.
And Wood!
And Speaker!!

Not bad at that.

Crackers Draw Off Day Today

Next Stop Is Little Rock Where Four Games Are Carded Beginning Wednesday

Today is an off day with the Crackers. They are scheduled to clash with the Little Rock Travelers next. The Arkansans don't play Sunday ball, and while the Crackers were playing off one game with the Chicks on Sunday Starr's outfit was idle, and was accordingly forced to keep the Mobile Gulls over another day. The Crackers will doubtless spend today in Memphis, leaving for Little Rock tonight.

In addition to grabbing off a game for themselves, thereby climbing back to within half a game of a fifty-fifty break for the season, the Crackers took a further hand in rearranging the club standings. By defeating the Chicks while the Barons were trimming the Nashville Volks, the Bimbies dragged the Bluffdown crew out of second place, and the Barons are now anchored in that slot.

This trip of the Crackers to Little Rock, by the way, does not savor of the soft pickings that most clubs have been finding in the Arkansas capital. In fact, the going there is likely to prove very lumpy. The Mobile Gulls found it so. The Gulls have just completed a four-game series there, and they dropped all four games. However, the Crackers expect to do a whole lot better than that.

Where They Play

Foxes Lead in Special Series

By Winning Monday's Game Columbus Makes Count 2 to 1 Against Macon Peaches

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 27.—The fifth game of the post-season in the Sally league was won here yesterday by Columbus, who took the lead over Macon in the race for the pennant. Columbus scored two in the first, and one each in three other innings; the only run of the visitors coming in the third when Lokey doubled, and was sacrificed to third, and home.

Lookouts Sign Cain

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 27.—The Chattanooga club has signed Shortstop Cain, secured from the Charleston club of the South Atlantic league. Pitcher Aaron, secured from Rome, was released after a trial to make room for him.

TRAILING THE NEWS

BY INNIS BROWN

When Pitcher Virgil Day had his temporary abode moved from Little Rock, Ark., to Atlanta, Managers Charlie Starr and Billy Smith, officiating in the transfer, there was a proviso inserted in the terms of the transaction. This proviso, regardless of the exact wording, made it imperative that Day demonstrate to Manager Smith that he is a baseball pitcher of caliber sufficient to hurl for the Crackers.

Monday afternoon in Memphis, the auburn-haired flinger made a forceful argument to that end. Said argument involved no figures of speech nor fine rhetoric, and yet it was about the most convincing bit of stuff that could have been spread before the gaze of Manager Smith. The entire effort, preamble, oratorical piece de resistance and peroration were shaped in the game of ball he pitched against the Chicks.

The Arkansan drew his first chance to show Manager Smith during the recent trip of the volunteers to Ponce de Leon. But he was in wrong. The luck of the game was with the Vols and they romped in winners. At that time, it was quite apparent that Day had the stuff to make the Crackers a valuable man. Again Saturday, he was shoved in against the Chicks, and would have come through with flying colors but for the wavering of his supporting cast at a critical moment.

But Monday it was different. The new hand, had the Indian sign on the Chicks from first to last, and not once were they able to negotiate the distance around the base line on him. A measley total of six scattered hits was registered at his expense. But he walked nobody and the Crackers fielded cleanly behind him. There was, therefore, no trick to his blanking the Bluffdown crew, making it two shutouts in a row for Lord's hopefuls.

While Day was slipping over his bit of argument to Manager Smith, he and his mates were perpetuating a practice which has obtained without interruption throughout that part of the current season now included in the pasts. They trimmed Lanky Bill Robertson again. Four times thus far this season has Robertson faced the Crackers and four times has he been defeated. Of the first two series between the two clubs, one here and one in Memphis, the Crackers won but one game each. Both times it was Robertson on the mound for the Chicks.

The last two games between the Crackers and Chicks, by the way, would indicate that the Crackers are now setting down to steady pace in their defensive work, though their hitting has been light and continues rather shy. It was bad fielding that lost the first game to the Chicks, but Kelly had little ground for complaint, since he was the most flagrant offender. The second clash went the other way because of a sudden development of weakness in the box. Thompson appeared on the verge of a break and Perry, who relieved him, could not locate the plate. They arrived just in time to be at the obsequies. However, an even break on the series in hostile territory is not any disappointment.

It is most noticeable how the different clubs in the league are cracking in their road work this season. Not a single one but what has shown to decidedly better advantage on home grounds than it has on foreign territory. This trip of the Crackers is starting out all right, but it, of course, remains to be seen how they will fare for the rest of their limited trip.

Their last long swing around the circuit proved highly disastrous. After an absence of something like twenty-five days, they arrived home sadly misused. But once home, they braced and played good ball. They had just begun to edge back into polite society, when they were ordered out for another foreign invasion.

But the record of the Crackers is not unlike that of other clubs this year. A few days since the Chattanooga Lookouts returned home after a very dismal journey around the southern end of the circuit. They made a sorry looking club in their five games here, all of which were lost, and they didn't show a great deal of improvement in the rest of the games scheduled on their trip.

But since arriving home, they have taken a brace, and are again a real surprise on Saturday, by grabbing both games of a double bill from the league leading Pelicans. The latter, by the way, have been trying to grow cheesy, after a successful run at home, but this double kick administered by the Lookouts at one and the same time did much to reduce them to the ranks of mere mortals.

The Mobile Gulls are having the same experiences. While the Crackers were here at home trying to improve their position in the race, they were finding a tough job to pull away from the Gulls. Schmidt's Birds hung up about the same record on their home stay that the Crackers did, and the relative positions of the two clubs in the league standing was hardly changed. Now the Gulls spring a big disappointment on Mobile fans by journeying over to Little Rock and dropping three in a row to the Travelers. This year every club in the league like a "home club." They play fine at home, but curl up on the road.

Manager Bill Schwartz, of the Vols, has a very plausible alibi on the same matter. Bill claims that the playing schedule explains everything. This year every team in the league is being called on to stand long raises on the road from time to time. Schwartz says when once a club begins to crack on the road it is next to impossible to rally the forces before the gang gets back within the range of the smell of home cooking, and there is logic in Bill's argument.

Diamond Notes

There are rumors to the effect that Manager Griffith, of the Senators, and Manager Stallings, of the Braves, are about to follow "Connie" Mack's example and "clean house."

'Tis said that Philadelphia "kids" are divided in their ambitions today. While some would be Alexander others would prefer to slug the ball like Cravath.

It behooves the players in the National and American leagues to do their best from this time on. Otherwise they will be dropped, that promising youngsters may be given opportunities to show their wares. The fact that the Braves, Giants and Yanks got rid of six men in a single day shows shows that the axe will be kept busy cutting away all deadwood.

"Ty" Cobb has taken Kavanagh "under his wing," and almost every time "Marty" goes to bat he calls him aside and gives him good advice.

The Sportlight

BY GRANTLAND RICE

THE GAME AND THE PIPER.

(Re-entered as a warning to those who see only the gleam and glamour of it all.)

This is your Game, old pal—the Game that you loved so well;
That crowned you King of the Field through the sweep of a golden spell;
That put the world at your feet in the border of dreams-come-true.
But here at the end of the trail—well, what has it done for you?

It gave you fame in a flash,
And rank at a tender age;
The thrill of the headlong clash,
A Name on the Printed Page.

Then jeers for the cheers of old
It gave with a snarl of glee;
It took your job in the fold—
And you were but thirty-three.

At the age when most men start
On the wide trail's upward sweep,
It broke your grip—and your heart—
In the rut where Hasbeens creep.

Acclaimed in the Big Corral,
Loud cheered in the Ruling Push—
Say, how does it feel, old pal,
To be bawled out in the Bush?

In the Bush with a wornout wing—
Loud cursed on a tank-town lot—
The Game—yes, it made you king—
Has it made you pay—or not?

That crowned you King of the Field through the sweep of a golden spell;
You've saved from the grip of Time, from the laurel that crowned your brow,
A dream and a wornout glove—well, what is the answer now?

THE WORLD'S GREATEST BALL CLUB.

No. 3—First Base.

VIC SAIER.—Chicago Nationals.

In announcing this selection we stand braced for the loud roar emanating from various townships—Brooklyn, with Daubert; New York, with Merkle; Philadelphia, with McInnis; Boston, with Schmidt.

Daubert is undoubtedly a grand ball player—a fine batsman and a corking first baseman. Jake can hit and field—two of the main requirements of greatness.

Fred Merkle, batting well over .300, is also playing brilliantly and deserves extended praise for his swift comeback after two seasons of poor batting. Merkle and Daubert are both stars—and so is Stuffy McInnis, the Mackian athlete. But Saier has been playing great ball around first base. While both Daubert and Merkle have led him a few points at bat the Cub performer leads his league in runs scored, runs driven across, extra base wallops, total bases and is up at the front in stolen bases.

A ball player who excels in so many ways—and who leads his entire league at so many shifts of offensive play—who is also a hard, loyal worker—must be given the credit he has earned. Hence the Saier selection.

LAST CHANCE.

White Sox and Tigers have one forlorn chance left of smashing the Red Sox grip upon first place—and this can only come in a victorious march through the east.

Carrigan's club fought its way to the top upon the western highway, and returning home so well fixed in the percentage way is now the easy flag choice. With Wood, Leonard, Shore, Ruth, Foster and Collins in shape, there doesn't seem to be a Tiger or a white Sox chance. As baseball dope travels, which is often in a zigzag direction, the Red Sox have only to make a normal showing at home to close out the race.

HOME RUNS AND MATTY.

"Why it is," queries an earnest non-combatant, "that so many home runs have been made off Matheweson this season?"

We know of but one reason—the veteran no longer carries his old-time speed—his pristine smoke, as you might or might not say.

Opposing batsmen, knowing this, are thus able to take a toe-hold for a full wallop. Matty's only chance is to out-guess them. If he doesn't outguess his opponent the latter is fixed for a full smash and a husky chance to whale the bally ball out of the lot.

THE PHILLY OUTLOOK.

1. In Killifer they have the second best catcher in the league.

2. In Alexander they have the game's greatest pitcher; in Mayer a young star—and in Al Demaree, a former star, who is romping back to his own, with more stuff than he has shown since 1913, when he won 16 out of 19 starts.

4. They have a fair infield—not a great one, but a steady one bolstered up by the addition of Bancroft at short, who is outranking the work of Mickey Doolan.

5. With Cravath, Whitted and Becker they have three good hitters, and as much general outfield strength as any rival.

6. And in Pat Moran they have a leader who inspires friendship and respect, and who will be able to keep club spirit at full fire on through to the finish. If the Phillies have a fair western trip these next two weeks—well, Philadelphia may have one section of a world's series after all.

SHORTSTOP CHAPMAN TELLS OF HIS WORST 'BONE' STUNT

DETROIT, July 27.—"They're still panning me for the boner that I pulled here, when I ran wild on a fly ball that Jackson hit to Cobb," said Ray Chapman, the Cleveland shortstop. "I guess maybe I did make a mistake. We all do. I wasn't alone. A lot of the Detroit boys were throwing away their gloves. But that's nothing to the one other story play in which I have figured since becoming a big leaguer.

"In the fall of 1913 we were fighting for the flag. Late in the day in a game at Philadelphia Doc Johnson reached third, and I was on second, with no one out. The score was 8 to 5, so that our three runs were very valuable. Olson hit a ball over second, with the infield playing back. Barry went after it, merely to try to knock it down for a short single, which was what he did.

"Of course, with the infield deep, I tore for third, as the athletics were planning their plays at first. When I got there I found Johnston standing on the bag, though he could have scored easily, and should have done so. I naturally went back to second. Olson had reached that sack on his hit and on Barry's throw to Baker.

"'What are you doing here?' asked Olson.

"'Nothing at all,' I replied; 'I'm just pausing for a second before going back to third.'

"As a result, both Johnston and myself were tagged out around third, and Olson, who tried to advance while the stuff was going on, was caught between bases. That gave the athletics a triple play. Jackson, next up, in the ninth inning, hit one against the fence that would have scored us all.

"I blame myself in a way for that play, though Johnston, for not scoring, was really responsible. I should have stuck to third, forcing the Athletics to make a play there. That would have resulted in but one out, with men still on third and second, and Jackson coming up for his long smash."

Travelers Win Farcical Game

Gull Fielders Try Hand at Hurling--Pels Down Lookouts, Vols Lose to Barons

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 27.—After Townsend allowed seven hits and five runs in two innings yesterday, three Mobile fielders tried their hand at pitching and Little Rock won a farcical contest, 13 to 1, making a clean sweep of the series.

"At the last meeting of this board resolutions, offered by Mr. Johnson himself, were unanimously adopted instructing me and the police to be active in strictly enforcing the laws against locker clubs. I started out and since that time have made cases against four or five.

"On Saturday night one week ago I went to the Atlanta club to see that the law was being enforced. While there the honorable chairman of this board, Mr. Fain, came in with a party of friends and ordered a drink. Mr. Fain put down a dollar. The waiter came back in a few minutes with the drinks and I left. I made a case against the club—"

"That's got nothing to do with this case," interrupted Commissioner Edwin Johnson, addressing the chair. "I can speak for myself, and I am sure I can for other members of the board, that the making of cases against locker clubs has nothing to do with these charges. Whoever is chief, the laws against locker clubs should be enforced, and I will support Beavers or anyone else in activities along that line."

Beavers interrupted to say the case is ready to be tried as soon as the witnesses will come to court.

"You are out of order, chief," declared Chairman Fain. "I am a member of that club, and have a right to get a drink there. You are not on trial yet, and these remarks have no place here."

Beavers, however, continued to talk. He said: "I have been on the police force twenty-six years, and this is the first time I was ever suspended. No man in this city can point out a crooked thing in my life. If any man says I have done a thing to reflect on myself as a citizen or an official, let him come forward and testify. I haven't got my name on any viaducts with —— under them—"

Here Mayor Woodward interrupted, shouting:

"Sit down, Chief Beavers; you have no right to open your mouth unless you are called on. Why did you bring personalities into this discussion? If that is not a case of insubordination I don't know what it is. You have displayed enough of yourself here tonight to back up every charge made against you."

Captain English cried out: "Chief Beavers, you always acted like a bull in a china shop every time you are given a chance and you have surely demonstrated your contempt for the board here tonight."

"Well, I never expected any support from you," asserted the chief. "What happened when I tried to clean up the town and enforce the law?"

"You have always tried to act the bully," said Captain English.

"You are just as much an old bully yourself as I am," flared back Beavers.

"What steps you have taken to make the locker clubs obey the law I have always applauded," began Captain English.

Beavers took a step toward Captain English and said:

"Yes, Captain English, but you did not applaud when I closed the district."

Captain English started up and a personal encounter seemed imminent, but Captain Mayo and several other officers gathered around the chief and several board members around Captain English. Everybody sat down.

The board then disposed of several routine matters and adjourned.

After the meeting members condemned Chief Beavers' actions, declaring that if anything had been lacking to clinch the charges against him, he himself had supplied it. Commissioner Clark said it was the opinion of the majority of the members that Beavers will be removed Thursday night and Captain Mayo elected in his stead.

James L. Beavers has been chief of police since August 11, 1911.

MAYO HAS HAD LONG SERVICE.

Captain W. M. Mayo the temporary chief of police and who, it is predicted, will succeed Chief Beavers in event the latter is removed, was born in Jasper county June 29, 1870, and received his early training at the home of his father, J. M. T. Mayo, who is still living, near Indian Springs, Ga. He was educated in the county schools and at the age of seventeen years graduated from the Flovilla High school.

During his early married life, Captain Mayo worked in the general store of his father and had general supervision of a large farm, showing a fine executive ability in handling its affairs. His father is still in business at Stark, Georga.

After a number of years as a successful farmer, Captain Mayo moved with his wife and young children to Jackson, Ga., and became a member of the police force there. Shortly thereafter he was elected chief and served in that capacity for three years when he came to Atlanta during the exposition in 1895. He once became a supernumerary on the Atlanta force and in 1897 was elected a regular.

About the year 1904 Patrolman Mayo was elected station sergeant and in recognition of his ability, was seven months later named captain.

Captain Mayo is popular with the men of the force and has hundreds of friends throughout the city and state.

Beavers, Smiling, Visits Station; Greets Acting Chief

Dressed in civilian's clothes, Chief Beavers about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning made his first appearance at police headquarters since he was suspended Monday night, driving up in his automobile.

"Good morning, chief," replied Captain Mayo, cordially, and the two walked into the private office of the chief of police on the second floor. After chatting awhile with Captain Mayo, Chief Beavers paid a short visit to Recorder Johnson and then left the station in his car.

Scalded By Coffee, 12 Year Old Boy Is Near Death in the Hospital

Coffee burns received at the breakfast table Monday morning were so serious that twelve-year-old Leonard Mealor is dying at the Grady hospital.

Leonard and his sister were playing about the table in the Mealor home, 20 Harris avenue, and the boy accidentally turned over the pot filled with scalding coffee The contents drenched him.

The Grady ambulance was called and the little fellow taken to the hospital. There it was stated Tuesday his burns are so serious he will not live.

WOOD BADLY BRUISED WHEN CAR STRUCK HIM

About midnight Monday Ed Wood, thirty-five years old, an employe of the Shannen Refrigerator and Supply company, was struck by an East Lake street car near Moreland avenue, and painfully bruised. He was removed to his home in Kirkwood. According to officials of the street car company, Mr. Wood was walking too close to the car tracks.

Bankruptcy Petition

Adolph Bernath, a grocer of 805 Marietta street, filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition on Tuesday, showing liabilities of $1,186 and assets of $888. J. Y. Palmer was appointed receiver.

Seven Charges Are Formally Preferred Against the Chief

Inefficiency and Incompetency, Insubordination and Lack of Respect of His Fellows Are Among Charges

Here are the formal charges preferred against Chief Beavers, for which he was suspended Monday night and which he must answer at his trial Thursday:

1. The said James L. Beavers, as chief of police of Atlanta, is grossly inefficient and incompetent.

2. The said James L. Beavers, as chief of police, after a long term of office, has wholly failed to suppress a vast number of felonies and misdemeanors committed within the city of Atlanta, or to apprehend and arrest the perpetrators thereof. The number of felonies committed and the percentage of those which have entirely escaped arrest being abnormal, without excuse, and to the grave injury of the public safety.

3. The said James L. Beavers, as chief of police, has not been able to obtain the respect and confidence of his subordinate officers and members of the force, thereby rendering the force ineffective.

4. Because the absence of respect, harmony and co-operation between said James L. Beavers, chief of police, and his officers and the force has resulted in rendering the police department inefficient, and to the detriment of the public good, peace and morals.

5. The said James L. Beavers, chief of police, has been guilty of insubordination, in that he has failed to obey the instructions of the board of police or to comply with its rules.

6. The said James L. Beavers, as chief of police, has been constantly conferring with and taking advice given by private citizens with reference to the management of the police department, in disregard of the police board and its rules.

7. Because said chief of police has not devoted his official time to the discharge of his official duties, and has spent much of said time in conference with parties unofficially related to the police department, and in attending to matters connected with his personal and political preferment, to the grave detriment of the public peace and safety.

NINE TRAWLERS ARE SUNK IN NORTH SEA BY TWO SUBMARINES

battle continues with great intensity. On the 25th the enemy attacked along this whole front with exception of the immediate vicinity of the Vieprz.

"North of Grubechow the enemy delivered an energetic attack with strong forces but our troops repulsed almost all the assault and successfully counter attacked. There has been no change on this front except in a few villages which pass from hand to hand.

"There has been no fighting on the Bug, the Zlota Lipa or the Dniester.

"In the Black sea Sunday our torpedo boats, operating in the coal region, destroyed forty sailing ships laden with coal. They also destroyed a new coal shaft and a suspension bridge."

Norwegian Schooner Is Sunk by a Submarine

AMSTERDAM, July 27.—(Via London.)—The Norwegian schooner Harboe was attacked and set on fire Sunday by a German submarine. The crew, which has landed here was given five minutes to get into the boats. The captain says he saw three other boats on fire at the same spot.

The Harboe was a three-masted bark built in 1878 at Port Elwin, N. B. She was owned by H. J. Stangebye, of Christiania.

Austrians Fight With Contempt for Death

GENEVA, via Paris, July 27.—The Tribune prints the following:

"The Austrians fight with utter contempt for death and the losses on both sides are frightful, but those of the Austrians appear heavier, the Italian artillery mowing them down in masses.

"On the Carso plateau the Italians are advancing in the direction of Gorizia.

"On Montenero the Italians have carried several portions of the enemy's positions.

"At Podgora the Italians repulsed all Austrian attacks notwithstanding the extreme violence with which they were delivered."

French Submarine Is Destroyed at Dardanelles

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, July 27.—(By Wireless to Sayville.)—The French submarine Mariotte was destroyed by a German submarine on July 26 in the narrows of the Dardanelles, according to a dispatch from Constantinople to the Mittag Zeitung. Thirty-one members of the French submarine's crew were captured.

The narrows is about midway in the Dardanelles straits between the Aegean sea and the Sea of Marmora. They are fifteen miles from the entrance to the straits.

The French submarine Mariotte was built at Cherbourg in 1911. The vessel displaced 615 tons when submerged and was 215.7 feet long. She was fitted with six torpedo tubes and was capable of traveling fifteen knots an hour on the surface and 10 knots below.

Danish Steamer Sunk by Submarine in North Sea

COPENHAGEN, July 27.—(Via London.)—The Danish steamship Nogil, from Gotehenberg, Sweden, for the river Tyne and laden with railway ties, has been sunk in the North sea by a German submarine. The crew was landed at Wilhelmshaven, near Bremen.

The name Nogil does not appear in available maritime records.

Artillery Exchanges Reported by French

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, July 27.—The French war office today issued the statement:

"A bombardment yesterday of Furnes and of East Dunkirk was followed by a retaliatory fire from our guns on the German barracks at West Ende and at Middelkerke.

"Five bombs thrown down yesterday evening by a German aviator on Dunkirk caused no damage.

"In the Artois district, particularly the sector of Souchez, last night saw artillery exchanges and engagements with hand grenades.

"In the Argonne two German efforts to attack near Layon and Binarville-la-Harazee were checked with ease.

"In the Vasges we succeeded yesterday evening in extending and consolidating our positions on the crest of the Lingekopf, and in occupying a height located between the River Linge and the stone quarries. On three different occasions the enemy delivered counter attacks, but without success. The German artillery yesterday bombarded Mount Schluch."

Italians and Austrians Are Battling Savagely

BERLIN, July 27.—(Via London.)—The battles between the Italians and Austrians along the Isonzo are described by a correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger, as the "mightiest and most frightful of the world war."

The struggle has lasted a week, the correspondent says, without any decision. The principal Italian onslaught has been directed against the Doberdo plateau where the artillery fire exceeds in intensity that of the battles of Tarnow and Gorlice in Galicia. The correspondent adds:

"The conflict which is being directed from captive balloons lasted three days without any interruption and after only a few hours' pause was resumed. The Austrian army which is composed of soldiers of nearly all the nationalities in the dual monarchy, endures the terrible fire bravely, and when the Italians gain a position they are soon thrown out of it.

"Italian aviators are continually seeking to destroy the railways at the rear of the Austrian lines, especially around Vahrenina, but thus far they have done no great damage."

Railroads Along Adriatic Bombarded by Austrians

(By Associated Press.)

ROME, July 27.—(Via Paris.)—Certain light Austrian cruisers and four Austrian torpedo boat destroyers at dawn today bombarded several points on the railroad which runs along the shore of the Adriatic between Senigallia, sixteen miles west northwest of Ancona, and Pesaro.

Several shells were thrown into the villages of Fano and Senigallia.

THE PRICE SHE PAYS

There is hardly an American woman nowadays who can keep pace with the demands made upon her time and energy without paying the penalty of ill-health. It may be that dreadful backache, dragging pains, headaches, nervousness or the tortures of a displacement. It is the price she pays To women in this condition Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound comes as a boon and a blessing. A simple remedy made from roots and herbs which brings glorious health to suffering women.

GOL. J. LINDSAY JOHNSON, OF ROME, DIES IN MANILA

Had Been Serving as Assistant Director of Census of Philippines for Year

ROME, Ga., July 27.—A cablegram received here today tells of the death in Manila at 1:30 yesterday afternoon of Colonel J. Lindsay Johnson, editor of the Rome Tribune-Herald and assistant director of the census for the Philippine islands. No details have yet been received.

It is expected that his body will be brought to Rome for interment.

Mr. Johnson was born in Floyd county sixty-one years ago, and was the son of John A. Johnson, a pioneer planter. He was educated at the University of Georgia, and Washington and Lee university, where he studied law. He was admitted to the Georgia bar and practiced law for a number of years. Twelve years ago he purchased the Rome Tribune, of which he was editor in chief, later occupying the same position with the Rome Tribune-Herald.

Colonel Johnson was allied with the civic progress of Rome and Floyd county, having occupied many positions of trust. He was a member of the house from Floyd on three different occasions, trustee of the University of Georgia, a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity and the Rome lodge of Elks. He had been prominent in the politics of north Georgia and was on several occasions delegate to national convention. An ardent Wilson supporter, he was appointed as director of census for the Phillipine Islands last June and sailed for Manila one year ago.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Annie E. Johnson, one daughter, Miss Letitia Johnson, who was with him in Manila and two sons, J. G. Johnson, of Rome, and J. Lindsay Johnson an employe of the census department at Washington.
